As storms and high tides wreak havoc... Do mystery barrels herald a change at Whitmore Bay?

RIGHT:
Plaid councillors Ian Johnson, Nic Hodges and Shirley Hodges at Whitmore Bay with the mystery barrels that have appeared there.

REPORT by TIM CHAPMAN

AS Britain reels from storms, heavy rain and high tides, local councillors fear Barry's world famous beach at Whitmore Bay could be losing its sand.

They claim the appearance of mystery barrels full of concrete near the sea walls may herald a significant change to the beach, and provide clues as to what is happening.

Plaid Cymru councillors Steffan Wiliam and Nic Hodges believe the barrels are old moorings that have been exposed by the storms, highlighting the issue of sand loss.

Coun Wiliam said there had been a noticeable drop in the level of sand at Whitmore Bay and other beaches in the Vale.

He explained: "The effects of excessive dredging in the Bristol Channel coupled with the recent storms are plain to be seen - a strategy needs to be put in place to protect our sandy beaches.

"At Whitmore Bay there is now a drop of more than a foot between the steps and the sand.

"This causes all sorts of access problems to people who use wheelchairs or parents with pushchairs."

Plaid has called on officers to prepare a report, measuring the effects of dredging and storms on Vale beaches and investigating potential causes of sand loss with recommendations on how to tackle it.

He wants it to be discussed at a committee meeting. Coun Wiliam added: "I have called for a report into this because measures must be put in place in order to protect our local environment and the local businesses which rely on it."

He warned: "We must act now. Once the sand is gone it won't come back."

Coun Hodges said: "After being told by local residents about the concrete barrels on the beach, I asked the Vale Council to remove them quickly.

"Although fascinating to see on the beach at Whitmore Bay, they are clearly a hazard and needed to be removed as soon as possible."

COASTAL WALK

The storms have also left their mark elsewhere on the Island. Last week, the Vale Council announced that they had had to close Clements Colley coastal walk on Nell's Point because of structural damage.

Council's meeting abandoned

PLAID CYMRU councillors have blasted Barry Town Council for failing to get the "basics right" after a meeting had to be abandoned on Monday evening, February 10.

Plaid's Shirley Hodges told The GEM: "I was very disappointed. It was an important meeting to set the level of our council tax next year."

Schools merger: questions remain

My daughter currently attends Llanilltud Fawr Primary School and my son will be starting nursery next year, and I have huge concerns regarding the amalgamation of Eagleswell and Llanilltud Fawr primary schools.

These concerns have deepened since attending a Vale of Glamorgan consultation drop-in session on February 4. The answers to questions asked were vague – no plans and figures seem to add up.

I am worried that if the Eagleswell site is sold, as some of the funding is going to repair the comprehensive school, will enough be available to complete the new larger school?

Also, I feel very much backed into a corner, as apparently if the amalgamation does not go ahead then Llanilltud Fawr primary school will become smaller, due to some of the buildings being unsafe, and will eventually lead to closure.

I am disgusted and annoyed that this appears to be the only option available and that the schools have been left to get into this state to begin with.

I realise that both schools need to be repaired and that the comprehensive is important, as it's the children's future school – but it appears that the Vale Council only cares about financial gain.

Apparently, the comprehensive already has funding available to repair it, but the Vale wants to improve it further and make a 3G pitch (indoor sports hall). Is this necessary right now when two schools face closure?

Even though I have nothing against the Welsh medium school, it appears that this, too, has funding already available to extend, which seems very unfair, when this school is a new build and has fewer numbers, and older well-established schools face closure.

There are many other issues that also need to be addressed, as mentioned in previous letters, such as traffic congestion, safe routes to school, lack of playground space and disruption to children while a new school is being built.

The numbers of school admittance could mean fighting for school placements in future.

Are teachers, LSAs and class sizes going to remain the same? All of the above were mentioned to the Vale Council, but no clear answers were given. Lucy Heffernan, Llantwit Major.

Asprou customer for 46 years...

YOUR article about A&H Asprou's 50th anniversary was great for a business that has been at the heart of Holton Road, Barry, for all those years, and I thank you for that.

I was with Harry having my hair cut recently and discussed this event and I believe that I have been going to the shop for nearly 46 years and it is always a pleasure to see that the team always look after customers as I have always been treated during all those years.

I sometimes ring Harry and say I will be there at 7am (coming from Gloucestershire) and try to beat him there, and we always seem to meet at the same time.

On very rare days, Andreas turns up and that makes it an emotional time, as he made me feel welcome there the first time I went to the shop.

I have been more than a customer – a friend of the family – and I wish them all the very best for the future.

I will continue to support them as long as I am able to travel to Barry, my home town where my family still reside.

'What about alternatives to closing our schools?'

WHY is the Vale Council so hell-bent on closing Eagleswell Primary School and amalgamating it with Llanilltud Fawr?

Ever since the community of Llantwit Major was promised a new comprehensive school, the Vale Council, in all its guises, has put forward possible options to bring this about.

Every plan the council has proposed over the last 10 years has had the closure of Eagleswell Primary School and the sale of its land as the starting point.

Have alternatives been thoroughly investigated by the officers of the council and, if so, why are they not included as possible alternatives in the recently-published consultation document?

The consultation document lists alternatives to the building of this super-size primary school, but states that they would not generate enough funding to cover the cost of the other suggestions and, the sale of land is key for the project to progress.

At the drop-in session last week, questions were asked about what the plan would be if the land sale did not generate the required return. The officers stated that they would look at other ways to raise the required finance, including potentially selling off other council-owned land and loans.

So you have to ask why don't the council sell these assets and take out loans to ensure that the required additional investment in the comprehensive school can go ahead anyway?

Why can't the council take out loans to ensure that Llanilltud Fawr does not fall down around the pupils – as was implied at the drop-in session at the school?

Another reason stated for the closure of Eagleswell is that it needs significant investment (well over £1m) in order to meet the Welsh Government's 21st century schools standard. The aspiration is to get every school building in Wales to comply with the requirements of the Education (School Premises) Regulations 1999.

Eagleswell is not alone in needing this level of investment to meet these standards. The vast majority of schools in the Vale (and the rest of Wales) are in the same boat. Is the council planning on shutting other schools in the Vale that need this level of investment?

Over the last few weeks, I have talked and listened to people who are in favour of the proposed amalgamation. It appears that the only reason people are in favour is that it will mean increased investment in the comprehensive or that Llanilltud Fawr will not be allowed to fall down around the pupils.

Llantwit Major should be getting this investment, whether the amalgamation goes ahead or not. I call on our local elected representatives to help the local people who elected them and to challenge the officers of the council to thoroughly investigate the possible alternatives before these schools are closed.

David Thomas, Boverton.

What most people find unacceptable

THE Vale MP, Alun Cairns, wrote in last week's GEM that inflation-busting rises to council tax are unacceptable.

He should think that another food bank opening in his constituency is unacceptable, that almost 350,000 people in the UK have to use food banks, that children are going to school hungry, that homelessness is increasing.

David Cameron's refusal to rule out tax cuts for the high-earning rich, George Osborne saying more cuts to the welfare budget are needed – these measures will hit the poor and disabled. These are things most people find unacceptable. G Smith, Llantwit Major.

'Llantwit deserves better than crumbs off the table'

IAM dismayed and disgusted at the Vale of Glamorgan Council's proposal to close Eagleswell school at Llantwit Major.

This is an asset and a vital part of the community here in Boverton and I don't see why people here should be made to suffer for all the years of neglect by previous administrations of the council.

Much of that was petty personal politics of the worst kind, which is now compounded with this idea. Why is it other areas within the Vale have had desperately-needed new schools or refurbishments without having to lose anything? Why should Llantwit Major be any different? We have desperately needed a new comprehensive school for over 20 years.

I was a governor there for eight years from 1999 – 2006 and we were promised a new school then. There was a legal duty to have all schools fit for purpose by 2010! What happened to that?

I am a town councillor here in Llantwit and know only too well the budget constraints etc, but as a PR exercise it doesn't look good spending vast amounts of money refurbishing the council chamber, and spending £700 per chair, then pleading poverty saying they are unable to pay for a new flat roof on Eagleswell; it doesn't add up.

Considering the population number here in Llantwit compared to Cowbridge, we should have over £60 million spent on us if you can spend £22 million there!

They didn't lose a school, and yet here we are, almost three times the size, and having to make do with a third rate option – and also LOSE a school!

The traffic problems are a whole other issue, Ham Lane East is a nightmare now at school times, with parking on double yellow lines, driveways blocked – the list is endless – so how is doubling the size of the primary school, as well as the increase of Ysgol Dewi Sant going to help?

We have very occasional traffic warnings now, so even if for the first few weeks they enforced everything, it would soon go back to the same old problems only so much worse.

I feel that the council need to seriously rethink this whole plan which is all about finance and not about education – and come up with a better alternative. Have a good look at how to spend the budget in all areas and not just education; are some things really necessary in hard times?

I'm sure that with some trimming here and there, they could find more to keep the primary schools where they are now and do some refurbishment and then just do a good job on the comprehensive.

This is what Llantwit Major deserves; it's about time we did better than just have crumbs off the table.

Coun Mrs Ann C Knight (past Mayor), Llantwit Major

Father of six thanks ambulance crew and the volunteer who saved his life

A FATHER-of-six who went into cardiac arrest after he awoke feeling unwell has paid tribute to the ambulance crew and volunteer that saved his life.

Wayne Jones, aged 45, had made himself a coffee before he collapsed in the living room at his home on Gilbert Street in Barry.

His son dialled 999 and began to administer cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) with support from the Welsh Ambulance Service call handler.

Minutes later, Community First Responder Bryan Foley had made his way to the property and delivered two shocks to Wayne using a defibrillator.

Paramedic Steve Magee and emergency medical technician Adrian Pagano arrived in an ambulance and delivered a third shock, which produced a heart-beat.

Wayne spent four weeks at the University Hospital of Wales in Cardiff, before he was healthy enough to return home.

Last week he was reunited with the team of life-savers for the first time since his brush with death.

Wayne said: "I owe the crew a big thank you for everything they did. I would not be here today without them."

There are approximately 8,000 sudden cardiac arrests annually in Wales, and the person may suffer permanent damage to the brain and other organs unless someone starts CPR immediately.

It can also sometimes be corrected by giving an electric shock through the chest wall, using a defibrillator.

Wayne fell seriously ill last April.

His wife Michelle said: "He had woken feeling really unwell, and had gone downstairs to make himself a coffee. The next minute I was being called by our son because he was unconscious."

"We're just so grateful for everything that Bryan and the crew did, they were amazing."

UPPER HOLTON ROAD IS SET FOR RENEWAL

OVER the next three years, £1.5 million of funding from the Welsh Government and Vale of Glamorgan Council will be invested in upper Holton Road.

Upper Holton Road (from the traffic lights by the primary school up to Tadross Hotel) is within the Castleland Renewal Area and has approximately 100 properties, a mixture of residential and commercial.

The first nine houses in upper Holton Road have signed up to the residential face lifting programme, due to be completed in 2014.

In March 2014, a report recommending how the £1.5 million should be invested will go to cabinet.

The report states that the council listened to feedback from the 2012 consultation, with 98 per cent of respondents wanting financial help to improve their property, 88 per cent wanting a grant and the majority wanting improvements to their properties to include not only the ground floor but also the front elevation.

Coun Bronwen Brooks said: "The report will propose that a number of grants be made available to help convert the fronts of commercial properties to residential properties, to help owners provide independent access to first and second floors where there is a business on the ground floor, and help to replace shop fronts and improve the front elevation of the property."

Businesses that take part and receive a grant offer will be asked for a small contribution towards improvements, the contribution is 15 per cent of the total cost.

If cabinet approves the proposals, officers will soon begin surveying the street and contacting potential business owners to participate.

Coun Wiliam, said he understood why people were keen to witness the spectacular sight of waves crashing on the rocks, but stressed safety must be paramount.

"I would urge people to be cautious and avoid putting themselves in danger on exposed parts of the headland.

"Whitmore Bay is a great place to watch the waves and I would encourage people to drop by our many cafes on the promenade and enjoy the beautiful and wild weather from there!"

Cathedral organist's memorable free recital

ON a cold, wintry Saturday lunch-time, over 100 people attended the free organ recital at All Saints, Barry, performed by Canon Graham Holcombe, organist at Llandaff Cathedral.

It was truly a memorable occasion to hear the refurbished organ being played to its maximum capability and the wonderful sounds it produced; £70,000 has been raised in support of the works that needed to be undertaken.

Canon Holcombe introduced the programme and it commenced with Fanfare by Welsh composer William Mathias. The recital also included Trumpet Tune by Purcell, which was played at Princess Margaret's wedding and also Suzanne Grover's wedding.

Further pieces were by Bach, Handel, Louis Verne. Following the recital, Father Adrian gave a vote of thanks to all those who had attended the recital and past events in support of the appeal, the PCC fundraising sub-committee for organising the refreshments, recital, and for the success of the appeal.

Finally, thanks were given to Canon Graham Holcombe, who was presented with a bag of organ appeal merchandise, as a memento of the occasion. AE Murders most foul relayed to Forum members!

THE speaker at last week's Barry Men's Forum, was Ms Clare Smith, deputy manager of the Art Museum of Wales, who gave an interesting talk on infamous murderers, and how they have been venerated by the public over the years.

Jack Shepherd was one of the first men to gain such notoriety, escaping from Newgate Prison four times, and when captured on the last occasion, he was elegantly dressed and with diamond rings, etc. The new popular 'I penny broadsheets', turned him into a celebrity, and at his hanging 17,000 people turned up to witness it.

Clare went on to give a number of examples of murderers, who became very famous, and told how the Staffordshire potteries soon latched on to their popularity and started making statues of them. Still today, these figurines are selling for up to £8,000 each.

She then went on to talk about more recent murderers, and Myra Hindley who was involved in the death of four boys, and how her 1963 photograph, became synonymous with the age. Even now her image is instantly recognised.

Also Fred West - the authorities not only demolished the house where the atrocities had taken place, but incinerated the whole building to thwart souvenir hunters.

However, Clare noted that similar recognition never accompanied the victims, who were soon forgotten by the public. Her suggestion was that people delete it from their memories, as they don't want to be like a victim.

The Barry Men's Forum meet every Thursday morning at 10.15am until noon at new Trinity Presbyterian church hall in Aberystwyth Crescent.

On Thursday, February 20, the speaker will be Mr Barry Stephens JP, whose talk is entitled: "How Magistrates Work."

New members are welcome. For further information, contact the chairman on 02920 594881. PMW

Barry man (84) had child porn on his computer

A RETIRED accountant has been given a suspended sentence at Cardiff Crown Court for having hundreds of indecent images of children on his computer.

Brynmor Griffiths, 84, of Heathfield Drive, Barry, was said by his solicitor, Adam Sharp, to "feel a sense of shame and embarrassment" at such a stigma being attached to him. Griffiths, who was said to be a church-goer and an elder, admitted six charges of possessing indecent images of children, aged between 10 and 15.

He was jailed for six months, suspended for two years, ordered to pay a victim surcharge of £80, and to register as a sex offender for seven years.

Judge Tom Crowther told Griffiths, who had no previous convictions: "It is necessary for you to understand that every photograph of this sort is a photograph of a child being abused."

People such as Griffiths, he said, generated such web traffic.

"It is anything but a victimless crime. Your fall has been a hard one."

Prosecutor Ian Kolville said that on August 13, Griffiths took his computer to PC

CARDIFF CROWN COURT REPORT by AJ SICLUNA

World at Culverhouse Cross for a check-up. A member of staff came across the indecent images and police were called. Three days later, Griffiths' home was searched.

On the computer were 212 indecent images. There were 184 of level one, two at level two, eight at level three, 15 at level four, and three at level five - the most serious.

There were also 33 deleted images.

Griffiths voluntarily went to Cardiff Bay Police Station and when interviewed, accepted he had accessed a pornography website. He said he would surf the net at night when he could not sleep and out of curiosity.

Mr Sharp said he had been married for 60 years and his wife stood by him.

"She is wheelchair bound, and he cares for her."

Mr Sharp said

Griffiths was in poor health, with lung conditions, type 2 diabetes, and high blood pressure.

"He had some standing in the community. All his family are aware of the proceedings and he is assessed as being of low risk of re-offending."

"If he went to prison, he would be extremely vulnerable and the knock-on effect to his wife would be serious."

"There are exceptional circumstances which merit the sentence being suspended. It is unlikely he will ever come before a court again."

Council meeting is abandoned

Coun Hodges added: "I really think the mayor and clerk need to get together before the meeting to check they are following the law and standing orders."

"The mayor abandoned the meeting when I asked for clarification as to why there were no minutes of our last meeting held in December."

"The council has a responsibility to be open and transparent - after all, we deal with over £1million pounds of public money each year."

"After admitting an error had occurred, the meeting was called off and a new date set. I wish the Labour leadership could get the basics right."

The Labour leader of the council, Coun Stuart Egan, responded: "It was unfortunate that we were unable to conduct our meeting, due to Coun Hodges raising a point of order. The meeting had to be deferred, because at 7pm the council was not able to seek the advice it needed."

"We have now received the advice, and we could have continued with the meeting, but you have to err on the side of caution to ensure you fulfill your legal obligations as a council."

"If Coun Hodges had raised her issue prior to the meeting, as you would expect any councillor to do if they thought there was a problem, then the meeting would have been able to proceed."

He added: "Finally it is important to state that town and community councils do not set the council tax, they set a precept."

CEMETERY APPROACH WILL HAVE COMMUNITY GARDEN

A PORTION of open land in Barry, which has been the subject of much debate over the years, could become a community garden and nature area.

Cemetery Approach has been the focus of campaigners keen for it to be saved as a public space.

The Vale Council cabinet has now agreed to pursue a partnership with Barry Town Council which could see the land become a new public space for the town.

Coun Gwyn John said: "We undertook consultation with the public after coming up with a list of options for the land during discussions with interested groups, including the Save Cemetery Approach Action Group."

"The options formed the basis of the public consultation. Thirty one per cent of respondents voted for an open community garden and 25 per cent for allotments.

"Unfortunately, contamination of the land in the past by ash and slag makes the area unsuitable for allotments, so we plan to develop the land as a community garden and nature area."

"Barry Town Council has expressed an interest in managing the land and we will be talking with them about this in the near future."

"We will also be investigating grant funding for the project; to include if possible grant funding through the Armed Forces Community Covenant Scheme."

Plans are under way to clear the site of excess vegetation and debris in preparation for work to start on the community garden.

TAKING TEA WITH MAYOR

MEMBERS of the Cadroxton (Barry) WI recently enjoyed a visit to the Town Hall in Barry, when they had a guided tour of the library and afternoon tea in the Mayor's Parlour.

Christina Whitchurch, president, said: "I would like to thank the Mayor, Coun Wilkinson, for inviting us to this lovely building. We've had an interesting and fascinating tour of the library and the visit has been completed with tea and cakes in the Mayor's Parlour."

Volunteer Jenet's 90th birthday is marked by local community

ONE of Barry's most indefatigable volunteers, Jenet Lockwood, was 90 years old recently, and the milestone was celebrated by friends and family.

Jenet has been a stalwart of the Drop-In Centre Development Trust, supporting the Thompson Street estate community for almost 15 years.

Before that, she served as the chair of the local residents' association.

The birthday party was held at Castleland Community Centre where the development trust is based.

Fellow volunteer Peter Phillips commented:

"For a 90-year-old, she is as sharp as a tack, enthusiastic, well informed - giving her time readily."

"Throughout her time, Jenet has been instrumental in furthering the needs and activities of the community."

Drop-In manager, Eileen Moore, said: "It was a lovely day and Jenet was delighted with a book of photo memories that was presented to her."

"It was a reminder of how much she has helped to achieve over the years. She was thrilled that surprise guests attended too."

"The craft class made a lovely card and the cake decorating class made her a birthday cake."

Over the last few years, the local community has seen a state of the art, renovated community centre become a reality alongside a sensory garden.

Jenet said: "It was wonderful to see some of the people I have worked with over the years - Assembly Member Jane Hutt, Coun Pam Drake, Tony Nash, a former director of Newydd Housing, David Williams from the planning department, and Dorothy and Lionel Rees."

"I have always been straight with people - I think if you don't like a straight answer to a question, don't ask the question!"

"The day after the party in the community centre, I enjoyed a family event, with people coming from Abertillery, Dawlish, Rugby, Bath and Kent."

Despite suffering

bouts of ill health, Jenet is determined to continue her volunteering work, and last week was out looking for a vehicle to help with community work.

Jane Hutt, who knows Jenet well, paid tribute to her: "I was delighted to join the celebrations for Jenet Lockwood's 90th birthday at Castleland

Community Centre. "With the presentation of an album of photos and press cuttings recording her involvement in the Thompson Street Estate and Drop-In Centre, it was a wonderful opportunity to reflect on a remarkable contribution to the community."

KEYBOARD VIRTUOSO TAKES WI DOWN MEMORY LANE

NOSTALGIA was in the air when Rhoose WI welcomed keyboard virtuoso Penny Weedon at their February meeting.

Penny evoked memories of childhood with tunes from 'Children's Hour', 'Listen with Mother', and the theme tunes from 'Dick Barton, Special Agent' and 'Paul Temple' - favourite programmes of children who grew up in the 40s and early 50s.

Suzanne Hodges summed up the mood of the audience in her vote of the thanks, saying how much everyone had enjoyed these ageless tunes. After a break for tea, business was resumed with budget, welfare and social reports.

Members were informed of the following forthcoming event: tea at the Cophorne Hotel on February 12.

There will be an extra meeting on the afternoon of February 20, when members will be able to take part in keep fit with Lucinda Harding.

Merger plans: 'Bridgend is more important than Cardiff'

THE proposal by the Williams Commission that Vale of Glamorgan Council should merge with that of Cardiff City Council is only the latest manifestation of a 'drip-fed' campaign that has been ongoing for several years.

Regular press and other media releases have regularly emphasised the advantages that such a merger would bring to the Vale, but the reason for these proposals runs much deeper than would first appear.

It is not just about the expansion of Cardiff's geographical boundaries, but also inevitable governmental control over virtually the whole of south east Wales that would be vested in Cardiff City Council.

If one looks at the history of the development of the settlement of Cardiff from Roman times, through the medieval period and on to its enormous growth over the 200 years of the Industrial Revolution, it has always been dependent on the agricultural and mineral resources of its neighbours.

The sole reason for Cardiff's past importance, either militarily or industrially, has been its strategic location and, principally, its access to the sea.

This is an advantage that no longer prevails, with the result that today the city has become nothing more than a recreational, leisure and residential complex, which successive planning departments have seen fit to endorse with their approval.

This aspect of city life is much loved by a modern generation of youth, and I see no objection to that, but it hardly justifies any claim that its authority should be extended beyond its present boundaries.

Industrially Bridgend is of far greater importance than Cardiff and has just as easy an access to the vital artery of the M4.

So while Cardiff postures as a vibrant modern city, it could also be seen as a city in danger of serious decline, a situation of which its council is well aware. It no longer has any 'Raison d'Etre' and that is why it would gladly accept any recommendations like those of the Williams Commission's.

Thus it will desperately continue to seek to widen its sphere of influence in the south of the Principality. To adapt a Biblical quotation - Cardiff 'toils not but it does a great deal of spinning'.

Cardiff's neighbours would do well to unite in a joint effort to curb the city's ambitions, but the parochial nature of Welsh politics would probably not easily adopt such a coalition.

In the end, it will be the responsibility of each member of the electorate to ensure their chosen candidates in the local and general elections are wholly committed to maintaining the independence of the constituency or borough they represent.

Sadly, the final decision on this issue may finally be taken out of our hands by the Welsh Assembly which is based in the capital.

Cardiff has everything to gain from a merger with the Vale, while the Vale would lose everything including its identity.

Despair for young photographer – as equipment is stolen

A young photographer who was on Barry Island last Saturday, February 8, had valuable camera equipment stolen.

Berren Rees was on the beach near the headland at Whitmore Bay taking landscape images at 3pm.

He was with a friend and while they were composing landscape shots rested a Giotto tripod next to Whitmore Bay life-guard hut for a few minutes.

When Berren turned to pick up his tripod, it had gone.

Berren said: "I can't believe that someone could do this in the blink of an eye."

"It will have a huge impact on my business because as a landscape and wedding photographer, the tripod is an essential piece of kit."

"I am just getting my business started and I do not have the funds to replace it."

"I am just hoping someone reads this and decides to return it."

Berren searched the area for two hours looking for anyone that might have picked it up. He also asked local businesses if they had seen anything but had no luck.

Berren studied at Ysgol Gyfun Bro Morgannwg in Barry and then went on to study interactive media at Bridgend College.

It was during his studies that he developed a passion for photography and after leaving college decided to follow his dream and set up Berren Photography.

He explained: "I specialise in landscape and wedding photography and recently won my first commission with Herbert R Thomas Estate Agents for a series of landscape images around the Vale of Glamorgan."

The tripod is a Giotto 9361B with a Giotto MH1311-652 ball head. It is worth £200.

If anyone knows anything about the theft, they should contact Barry Police Station. Alternatively, it can be returned to Berren anonymously via his website www.berren.co.uk

Merger would save money

I MUST agree with Mr Dennis Harkus and Mr John Turner (GEM letters), who both hit the nail on the head as regards the merger of Cardiff and the Vale councils.

It will save money in the long run and should improve our way of life.

I see by some of the comments from the Vale hierarchy they are worried about their positions on the council and what will happen to them.

That's life: look on the bright side, you can always sell your fancy chairs on Ebay! Mr B Kirke, Barry.

St Athan road to be straightened

WORK has started on a road straightening project, costing almost £3 million, to improve access to the St Athan and Cardiff Airport Enterprise Zone, paving the way for new multi-million pound investments in the site.

The Welsh Government is funding the improvements to the B4265 between Gileston and Oldmill to improve connectivity within the zone and it hopes that the work will help attract investment.

Works are expected to be completed by the end of 2014.

A Welsh Government spokesperson said: "St Athan and Cardiff Airport Enterprise Zone has had several inward investments over the last three years which have the potential to create hundreds of new jobs, that require the straightening of this stretch of road to improve safety and access."

The Minister for Economy, Science and Transport, Edwina Hart said: "This investment demonstrates the Welsh Government's commitment to making a success of the St Athan and Cardiff Enterprise Zone. I

"Improving access to the site will open up more investment opportunities here. The straightening of these bends will also make the road safer for the many drivers who use this road every day."

Coun Lis Burnett, cabinet member for regeneration, innovation, planning and transportation, said: "I am delighted to see work begin on improving this stretch of road."

"This project is vital to the long-term future of the St Athan and Cardiff Airport Enterprise Zone and will open many new investment opportunities to help the zone develop and realise its potential."

The Vale Council is carrying out the work on behalf of the Welsh Government.

Commonwealth flag to fly in Barry

Over to you, Madam Mayor!

ABOVE: The Vice Lord Lieutenant, Sir Brooke Boothby, presents the Commonwealth flag to Coun Margaret Wilkinson.

THE Vale Council will be flying the Commonwealth flag outside the Civic Offices in Barry to mark Commonwealth Day on March 10, and throughout the Commonwealth Games in Glasgow from July 23 - August 3.

The Commonwealth flag was officially presented to the Mayor of the Vale, Coun Margaret Wilkinson by the Vice Lord Lieutenant, Sir Brooke Boothby at the Mayor's Parlour on February 10, 2014.

Coun Margaret Wilkinson and Sir Brooke Boothby were joined by pupils from St Helen's Junior School, Barry.

Buses could run once again to local hospital

BUSES may soon start running again to Llandough Hospital - and senior staff say the reason is that new parking arrangements have been a success.

Two months ago, the hospital's new multi-decked car park opened and private company ParkingEye started managing parking regulations at UHL.

New patient-only parking areas, closer to the hospital building were set up, along with security measures, including patrols, to tackle inconsiderate parking - a long standing problem at the hospital.

Peter Welsh, the hospital's general manager, said: "So far it appears to be going really well. The roads have been clear, there's been no vehicles blocking key entrances and there have been spaces available for staff and patients."

"There have been mixed comments from patients and staff. However, this was to be expected during the initial period until site users become accustomed to the new arrangements."

"One of the positives is that bus operators are once again prepared to look at servicing the site fully, which they have not been able to do in the past due to vehicles being parked inappropriately."

"If we can bring public transport back on to the site it will be a great benefit for visitors and staff."

AM helps British Heart Foundation's campaign

LAST week, the British Heart Foundation shop on Holton Road, Barry, which is supporting the charity's 'Ramp Up The Red' campaign, had a visit from Vale AM Jane Hutt.

During February, British Heart Foundation (BHF) Cymru is asking people to get involved with Ramp up the Red to help raise funds that will go directly towards vital research, support and care for those suffering with heart disease.

BHF Cymru shops have recently launched their annual 'Love Notes' campaign, whereby people can buy a heart-shaped note and place a message of their choice to display in the window. All proceeds for this will go towards the Ramp up the Red to campaign.

When Jane Hutt visited the shop in Holton Road, she commented: "There are over 3,504 adults in my constituency living with heart disease - a devastating disease which can affect anyone, from babies to grandparents."

"I am delighted to help raise awareness locally by supporting the local BHF shop by placing a love note in its window."

LEFT: Area manager, Terry Hughes and the shop's assistant manager, Victoria Froud and volunteers are joined by the AM in Barry.

PENARTH AND DISTRICT RAMBLERS' NEWS

Dodging the showers on a stroll through three parks

AS almost constant rainfall continues deluging paths in water and mud, it was something of a change to join an urban walk led by Sylvia, taking in three delightful parks.

Forging onwards in dry sunny weather across Pont y Werin and pounding pavements to join the Ely Trail, then into Cowbridge Road East, and Penarth and District Ramblers' first stop at Victoria Park, which was opened in June 1897, a small zoo was incorporated in the park.

The most famous resident was Billy the seal, who occupied the lake between 1912 and 1939, and although the lake was filled in during the 1950s, a statue of Billy stands proud beside what is now the children's playground.

After refreshments, Thompson's Park was next on the list, which was initially called Sir David's Field, believed to have derived from Sir Dafydd Matthew, who in the 15th century was granted land for service to King Edward IV.

Charles Thompson, a member of the wealthy family who owned nearby Penhill, opened the garden to the public in 1891 and some 20 years later offered it to Cardiff City Council, as long as it remained an open space, retained its original name and he was allowed to manage it at his expense.

After 11 years, Thompson stepped down and as a tribute to him, the park bears his name.

Exiting into Pencisely Road, then onto Llandaff Fields, a drier path at Pontcanna Fields led to the Blackweir Bridge, where the Taff was crashing through on its journey to Cardiff Bay and making their way through Bute Park, they encountered the first shower of the day.

Bute Park was created by Andrew Pettigrew between 1873 and 1901 as a private garden for the Bute family of Cardiff Castle, and was donated to the people of Cardiff in 1947, along with the adjoining Sophia Gardens.

Crossing back to the west side of the Taff and along Fitzhamon Embankment, passing excited rugby fans making their way to the Millennium Stadium for the opening game against Italy in the Six Nations, several more showers accompanied the journey along Taff Mead Embankment, Clarence Road Bridge and Hamadryad Park, but a fairly dry spell encompassed lunch at the Wetlands.

Crossing Cardiff Bay via the barrage, the sun suddenly reappeared and walking into a blustery wind meant outer clothing was almost dry upon the return to Cogan, with enough time to thank the leader and get home for the kick off!

On February 16, meet at 9am at Cogan Leisure Centre for a 10.5-mile mod/hard walk to Cefn Cyff from Llanfrynach; contact Joy on 01446 737131.

Trading Standards warning on 'copycat' websites

TRADING STANDARDS are warning Vale residents about copycat government websites after a number of complaints from members of the public.

Unscrupulous companies aim to trick people into paying for applications, up to £1,000 in some cases, which are available free of charge on government websites.

Services such as applications for passports, driving licences, tax rebates, tax returns and the European Health Insurance Card (EHIC) have all been targeted in recent months.

Christina Roberts-Kinsey, principal Trading Standards officer gave this advice: "After searching the web, always take a moment to check that you are in a legitimate website and scroll past the sponsored results at the top. If you are in any doubt at all, access the official government website www.gov.uk and navigate to the service you require through there."

Tory AM unhappy with Airport's express bus service performance

A REPORT into the Welsh Government-subsidised T9 Airport Express, has raised "serious questions" according to South Wales Central AM, Andrew RT Davies.

The report, undertaken by Professor Stuart Cole and commissioned by the Welsh Government, assesses the effectiveness of the T9 route and makes suggestions for improving the service.

Mr Davies, Leader of the Welsh Conservatives, said that it was concerning that basic steps were not taken by the Welsh Government before its launch, and lamented the higher than expected cost to the taxpayer in its first four months of active service.

The report showed that the T9 Airport Express, run by First Cymru has cost the Welsh Government £242,691 to date (after four months) at a subsidy of £11.33 per passenger.

The report also said no targets for passenger numbers were set prior to its launch, and no market and development strategy was undertaken.

Mr Davies said: "Mr Cole himself admits that this is a high subsidy for a service of its type, but the fact that it has already cost the taxpayer almost a quarter of a million pounds in just four months is worrying."

"I live in the Vale and see the T9 several times a week. The reality is that it frequently runs empty and the fact that it has been called the 'Empty 9' by locals says it all."

"What concerns me most of all is that Mr Cole's report reveals that almost no strategy was put in place to ensure that the route would be a success."

by PHILIP IRWIN

There were no targets set for passenger numbers and, worst of all, there was no market and development strategy, because it was rushed so quickly into service.

"I have every respect for the advice offered by Professor Cole and I sincerely hope that his recommendations improve its viability."

Mr Davies had also suggested that Vale residents should be allowed to get on and off the bus at a few selected stops, and he said he was disappointed that this looked to be unlikely to happen.

He said: "I had hoped that the Welsh Government might look at the viability of including local and express services on this route, particularly in light of the fact that residents of Rhosneigr have lost their own service that covered much of this route."

"Whilst I understand that an express service needs to be quick and reliable, it is disappointing that the Welsh Labour Government now looks unlikely to consider making the T9 available to local commuters – many of whom are seeking to travel all the way in to Cardiff itself."

"Allowing the service to pick up from a limited number of stops on the route on one of the T9's three hourly services would not only have significantly improved links between the Vale and Cardiff, it would potentially have gone some way towards addressing the disappointing take-up in passenger numbers to date."

Heartening news on cancer survival highlights Assembly's care plans

THIS week, I was pleased to launch the 2014 Marie Curie Great Daffodil Appeal in the Senedd.

All over Wales, the Marie Curie daffodils are appearing on lapels, and donations are being made to support the excellent care provided by Marie Curie nurses to terminally ill patients in the Marie Curie hospice and in the community.

On recent visits to the hospice in Penarth, I have witnessed at first hand that care and commitment to patients and their families.

Gareth Williams, Chair of the Wales Advisory Board, welcomed Assembly Members, Marie Curie staff and volunteers, as well as health professionals in primary and secondary care to the Daffodil launch.

I thanked Marie Curie and all those involved in the provision of end of life care, which is a high priority for the Welsh Government, with the support of the Health Minister, Mark Drakeford AM who has said that:

"End of Life Care is care for a person – not a patient, or a service user, but a person in the full and rounded sense. The plan sets out clear ways in which the voice of the individual, supported by those closest to them, is heard and respected at the centre of the service they need."

Last July, the Health Minister confirmed that £6.5m will be allocated to specialist palliative care services across Wales for 2013/14, including £2.4m for hospices.

The close partnership between the NHS in Wales and the hospice movement is long-standing and essential in delivering the right services for people who need the best end of life care.

This focus on Marie Curie follows an important Welsh Government report earlier this month on our Cancer Delivery Plan, which showed that cancer survival rates in Wales are improving faster than anywhere else in the UK.

The report demonstrates real improvements in cancer care in Wales over the past year and as the Health Minister stated: "This is a tribute to all those involved in the planning and delivery of care."

While the report shows areas of progress, it also highlights areas to focus on, such as reversing the decline in the uptake of bowel cancer screening.

The Minister is clear that while our cancer survival rates show improvement, we need to reach the levels achieved in a number of other European countries and we need to continue to make progress with research, training and new technologies.

The publication of the Welsh Government and MacMillan Cancer Support's 'Cancer Patient Experience Survey 2013' provided the results of a survey which monitors developments in cancer care by measuring progress from a patient's point of view.

The survey reported the views of 7,352 cancer patients and with a 69 per cent response rate, a robust and comprehensive analysis of people's experience of cancer has emerged. This is reflected in the views of cancer patients in Wales who rated their care as either 'excellent' or 'very good'.

The survey showed that 85 per cent of patients felt they were always treated with respect and dignity by staff, 87 per cent had confidence and trust in doctors and nurses caring for them and 94 per cent said they had enough privacy when being treated.

While these findings are encouraging, the survey also shows areas where further improvement is still needed but we have the clear evidence where we should be focusing our efforts.

With £4.6m Welsh Government investment, new cutting-edge radiotherapy equipment is being installed in the Velindre Cancer Centre, which will provide highly specialised and advanced Stereotactic Body Radiotherapy treatment to thousands of cancer patients in Wales every year.

We are investing in the most up-to-date technology available to us in Europe. We are also exceeding our targets for recruitment to clinical trials.

This week, as a result of careful financial management in an ever-tightening public finances climate, I was able to announce a further investment of £50million for the NHS in Wales in my supplementary Budget for this financial year, on top of the additional £150m announced in October.

Health is a priority for this Welsh Government.

ASSEMBLY NOTES

by Jane Hutt AM
(Minister for Finance)

Life-long pals are ready to settle down quietly together!

DOGS Trust Bridgend's resident globe-trotters Poppy and Clyde are a well-travelled pair of pooches, who are looking to pack in their jet-set lifestyle and settle down in a new home in time for Valentine's Day.

The inseparable duo, who previously lived with their owners in Spain and Bulgaria, are now ready for a new adventure – finding their 'furry tail ending' in a loving new home.

The GEM has joined forces with the Dog's Trust to find caring new owners for animals at its Bridgend Rehoming Centre (Telephone 01656 725219).

The adorable pair are devoted to each other and are looking to find a loving home to spend the rest of their lives together.

Poppy and Clyde were brought in to Dogs Trust Bridgend as part of Dogs Trust's canine care card scheme after their owner sadly passed away late last year.

Staff at the centre in Pen-y-Fai are now appealing for a very special owner who can provide a loving retirement home for the lifelong friends.

They both have passports so though they love their home comforts, they would be happy to accompany their new owners on adventures abroad.

Poppy is a 12-year-old Spaniel-cross, who is still young at heart and loves nothing more than stretching her legs on long walks, or having a run around outdoors.

Clyde is a sweet, ten-year-old Podengo, who adores playing with his doggie pals, especially Poppy.

They would suit a quiet home where they can live out their golden years together.

Dogs Trust Bridgend Rehoming Centre Manager Beverley Price says: "It has been such a sad year for the pair, so it would be great to see them embark on one of the most important journeys of all – to the loving home they deserve in time for Valentine's day."

If you are interested in rehoming a rescue dog, please call Dogs Trust Bridgend on 01656 725 219 or visit www.dogstrust.org.uk.

These two devoted pals, Poppy and Clyde, are desperate for a new home after their owner died.

Vale MP hits out at missed ambulance response times

WITH targeted ambulance response times again missed across the Vale in January, local MP Alun Cairns has called on the Welsh Government to resolve this "persistent problem."

He pointed out that Welsh Government statistics reported only 54 per cent of category A calls arrived within the target time across the Vale. This was well below the 65 per cent expectation and below the 57 per cent Welsh average. In England the target response time is 75 per cent," the MP said.

"This problem has been going on for years and enough is enough. Over that time, I have received reports of pensioners who have been left stranded waiting for hours, and in another case, a nervous neighbour simply driving an ill patient to the hospital themselves."

"This is a constituency-wide problem and I continue to be contacted by constituents from Barry and Llantwit Major to Cowbridge, who feel they are being let down by the service.

"Despite the best efforts of dedicated ambulance staff, the service is not delivering the standard of service that patients expect and deserve. I am concerned that there appears to be little action by the Welsh Government."

"It is also worth considering that if a Community First Responder arrives within the target response time, that is counted as having achieved the target, although the patient could still be waiting for an ambulance for a considerable period longer."

"Hardworking paramedics are being left waiting at A and E departments. They are being held back and not freed up to travel to new patients. Waiting times and A and E are far too long and are impacting ambulance response times."

Cross-party occasion in Vale 'fantastic' says MP

PETERSTON SUPER ELY residents recently joined local MP Alun Cairns

(above) for an event that involved wine tasting, Chinese meal and a talk on a range of anecdotes from Parliament.

Alun Cairns commented: "This was a fantastic community event, which crossed the political boundaries."

"I was delighted to have the presence of well known Plaid and UKIP supporters."

Soroptimists rally again to Velindre Hospital's Easter Chicks appeal

IN wet and windy weather, president Audrey, of Barry and District Soroptimists, delivered another batch of Easter chicks to bring a cheerful splash of spring colour to the Velindre Appeals office.

The appeals officer at Velindre Hospital, Julie Smith MBE, started the 'Chick Knit' 17 years ago, when her aim was to reach £1million! Having reached her target she is now aiming for her second million, as there is no let-up in the demand for chicks!

Over 13 years ago, club member Maywin Thomas learned of the Easter Chick Appeal and, with her encouragement, members, family and friends have donated more than 12,000 chicks to the appeal.

Volunteers fill the knitted chicks with chocolate eggs and these are sold for £1 each. About 90 per cent of the chicks are sold in schools. The children love them and like to collect them each year.

As well as the chicks, this year the club knitted Father Christmas, snowmen and Christmas pudding decorations from patterns supplied by Velindre Hospital.

These were used to decorate the club's tree at the annual Christmas tree festival in St Augustine's church, Penarth and then sold, with all proceeds going to Velindre.

Money was also again donated to the appeal by club member and Barry florist Hilary West who, together with her staff, Laura, Samantha, Jane and Maxine knit, sew up, supply the chocolate eggs, and sell not only chicks, but also snowmen at Christmas, and Easter bunnies.

The Velindre appeal is always looking for new knitters, and if anyone would like to be involved, please telephone Julie Smith on (029) 2031 6211.

Penarth Learning Community remains on track for completion date in October

PENARTH Learning Community is due for completion on October 4 this year and lots of progress has been made in recent months.

Two schools are being constructed – a replacement of the current St Cyres School and the provision of a new special education needs facility replacing Ashgrove School, Ysgol Erw'r Delyn, and Ysgol Maes Dyfan which moves from Barry.

Associate project manager, Ron McClean, told The GEM: "Work to the two schools and the respite building is on track for completion in October of this year, including external areas and car parking."

"On occupation of the new building, the second phase of the project will involve the demolition of the old St Cyres School, Ysgol Erw'r Delyn and Ashgrove, and the creation of the all weather pitch as well as grassed pitches for football and rugby and the creation of multi use games areas."

The project's budget is £48million. The project and cost management has been undertaken by AECOM, the architects are HLM, the structural engineers are ARUP, and the main contractor is Leadbitter.

ESTYN REPORT HIGHLIGHTS 'MANY STRENGTHS' AT COMPREHENSIVE SCHOOL

A RECENT Estyn inspection has given Cowbridge Comprehensive School a good report – and has identified “many strengths”.

The school was inspected in December last year by Estyn, Her Majesty's Inspectorate for Education and Training in Wales, in December 2013.

The team of inspectors judged that the school's current performance, and also prospects for improvement, were both good.

A school spokesperson said: “These judgements were arrived at because ‘standards achieved in all key stages of the school are consistently high in all indicators’, and ‘behaviour and attitudes to learning are consistently good’”.

The spokesperson went on to say that attendance was “above expectations” and commented that “the leadership team has a thorough understanding of the strengths and areas for improvement”.

It found that pupils enjoyed lessons and had “positive attitudes to learning”. The inspectors went on to say that there were “high levels of pupil involvement in all aspects of school life, especially the fields of performing arts and physical education”.

There was praise also a very positive mention of the work of the Eco-committee and the role that the Duke of Edinburgh Award Scheme plays in developing young people's life skills. The report also stated: “The school works well with partners to support its pupils and improve standards and wellbeing”.

A key feature, the report said, was that the school “communicates well with parents, who are highly supportive. The number of parents attending school events is high”.

The headteacher, Mrs Debra Thomas, said: “We are pleased that the inspection team recognised the many strengths of the school, particularly the high expectations and standards achieved by our young people.”

“We look forward to achieving greater success and improvement for all members of the school community”.

Scouts and Cubs parade in the Mayor's parlour!

1st Barry Sea Scouts in the Mayor's parlour.

The 2nd and 4th Barry Cubs.

MAYOR of Barry, Coun Claire Curtis, recently welcomed Barry Sea Scouts and Cubs to the Mayor's parlour for a visit.

Last month, the 1st Barry Sea Scouts were invited to tell the Mayor, invited guests and parents all about their recent trip to Saudi Arabia. AM for the Vale, Jane Hutt, along with Chris Elmore the Vale of Glamorgan cabinet member for children's services, also attended the presentation. Coun Curtis explained: “Jane Hutt and I were fortunate to be invited to the headquarters of the 1st Barry Sea Scouts before they embarked on their adventure to Saudi Arabia at the end of 2013.

“I asked the Scouts to come to the Barry Town Council offices and tell us all about their trip on their return”.

Jane Hutt added: “This was a wonderful opportunity for these five Scouts and it gave them the chance to learn about a different culture and to build links between Wales and Saudi Arabia: I was delighted to hear that they are still in contact with their hosts since their return.”

This month, the 2nd and 4th Barry Cubs went along to the Mayor's Parlour as part of their Community Badge project. The Mayor told the cubs about Barry Town Council and her role and then held a question and answer session with the children. Coun Curtis said: “I was delighted to invite the Cubs and their leaders to the Barry Town Council Offices and enjoyed showing them the various historic photographs and pieces that are held in the Mayor's parlour.

“As well as the Q&A session, we also held a quiz and the children were given the opportunity to draw any of the items on display; the Mace proved to be very popular!”

The Cubs have already visited a PCSO and a fire station and have only to arrange a visit to a church to complete the tasks needed to earn their badge.

Coun Curtis added: “The Cubs were all very well-behaved, and I hope they enjoyed their evening as much as I did”.

Hair stylists take case for registration to the Senedd...

COWBRIDGE hairdressers, The Hair Business and Fich and Ramous, were at an event in the Senedd recently to highlight the Hairdressing Council's campaign for mandatory state registration of all hairdressers and barbers.

They included Leigh Ann Summers and Leighanne Phillips, winner of the Women in Business in Wales Award, who has run her successful salon The Hair Business since 1990.

They petitioned Vale AM Jane Hutt, who said: “I am fully in support of State Registration and congratulate the skilled hairdressers and barbers who received certificates and awards at the Senedd.”

Record breaker joins Vale Show

PLANS are well under way for this year's Vale of Glamorgan Show at Fonmon Castle on Wednesday, August 13.

The committee is pleased to welcome world record breaker and giant vegetable grower Phillip Vowels, who will now be joining us as horticultural show manager.

He brings with him years of growing and gardening experience and hopes to introduce some new classes to the show, including giant vegetables.

Phillip looks forward to welcoming new and past exhibitors to the show and would also like to invite schools to be part of this great show by introducing classes where schools can enter, flowers, vegetables and best school's children's garden. He is happy to help schools with seeds and with any advice they might need.

THE Cardiff and Newport SANDS charity will hold its Seren Roberts Memorial Tournament at Cottrell Park Golf Resort, followed by a fundraising dinner on June 20.

The charity support bereaved parents following the loss of a baby through stillbirth, or death shortly after birth.

It is entirely self-funded, run by a group of bereaved parents who devote the time on a purely voluntary basis.

The golf event has become their main fundraising event of the year, enabling it to provide hospitals in the area with memory boxes for bereaved parents, and monthly support meetings.

It has set up bereavement rooms in University Hospital Wales, Cardiff, Royal Gwent in Newport, and the Royal Glamorgan in Llantrisant, including providing 'Cold Cots', which allows parents to stay with their babies a little longer should they wish to.

Additionally, they have provided bereavement training to local midwives and part funded a baby remembrance garden in Thornhill Cemetery, Cardiff.

The golf event is organised by bereaved father Gwyn Roberts, who lost his daughter Seren in 2005.

Gwyn said: "When my wife and I lost Seren on November 5, 2005, we were lost. We were distraught. While the level of care we received in the hospital was faultless, we just didn't know what to do.

"Then, just before leaving, one of the midwives happened to scribble down a contact number for the national SANDS charity on the back of an envelope.

"The support we received from them in those early days was priceless. Looking back now, it seems so lucky it was that particular midwife was there when we were leaving to give us the details.

"Had we not had it, I don't know where we would be, or how we would have gotten through those first traumatic few days and weeks."

The event is not just for golfers. Non golfers are welcome at the evening dinner.

Entries for the event can be made via www.cardiff-sands.co.uk/Golf.htm, and at prices of only £45 per attendee for the whole event, or £25 for the evening only, it also provides fantastic value for money (other payment options, including group bookings are available on the website).

Contact Gwyn by emailing golf@cardiff-sands.co.uk.

Doc's putting on his dancing shoes for breast cancer centre

SUMIT GOYAL, Cardiff and Vale University Health Board's lead clinician for breast services, is taking part in a 'Strictly Top Dancer' event to raise funds for the breast centre at University Hospital Llandough (UHL).

It sees eight companies competing in the Latin dance competition for the coveted Glitterball at the gala evening, presented by Julien Macdonald OBE, and raising money for the Breast Centre along the way.

Mr Goyal said: "I have endured three months of intensive training from my professional dancer Sam, where we are learning two Latin American dances and will be performing them live on the night.

"I have learnt the cha cha and rumba and if I am lucky enough to get through to the finals, there will be a Bollywood-themed show dance.

"It has been an amazing experience and Sam has been a patient teacher. We had a dress rehearsal last week and I was amazed at the effort everybody has put into this event, both the dancers and the organisers.

"So for one night only I am hanging up my scalp and theatre blues to take to the dance floor with Sam, to compete for the Glitterball."

Money for disaster relief

VIC HOPKINS butchers at High Street, Barry, raised £370 from the sale of 5p carrier bags, and this was donated to the Philippines.

"Now, let's see how much we can raise for the flood victims of Somerset," said Mr Anthony Hopkins.

Safety call at Barry junction

A BARRY councillor has come out in support of residents' calls for safety improvements at the junction of Gladstone Road and Everard Street.

Independent councillor Richard Bertin, who represents the Court ward, is asking Vale Council to put double yellow lines on the corner of this junction to prevent further accidents at this site.

Coun Bertin said: "There have been many accidents at this junction lately – and near misses – as drivers are obscured by blind parking on the corners, making the junction a serious hazard."

He now plans to visit residents in Everard Street with a petition calling for action.

Beekeepers are hoping for the arrival of spring

LATEST NEWS FROM THE FONMON APIARY

NOT a lot is happening at present, as the unsettled weather is giving the bees and us beekeepers a hard time.

When dry spells occur, the bees are out flying around the apiary but no further. These exits from the hive are cleansing flights.

So, what is a cleansing flight? Well the bees are consuming food from the stores in the hive and, of course, bodily wastes build up. When conditions allow, the bees will pop out to relieve themselves.

Spring is trying to put in an appearance. I can see some daisies in the orchard and even some snowdrops in other places. Pussy willow is out and there are daffodils out in my own garden, but unless the weather improves, and more blooms appear, the bees will not be able to avail themselves of pollen or nectar.

With the days lengthening, the queens will be laying. I can see evidence of this when checking the mite drop trays that I have in various colonies. Dead mites are visible and when I examine the tray debris more closely under the large magnifier there are very pale mites observed.

These are mites that did not reach maturity when a new bee was ready to emerge from its sealed cell. Mature mites are dark brown in colour.

How do I know these pale mites are immature? The answer is provided by the life cycle of the Varroa mite. Let us follow this from its initiation.

Step 1, the queen bee will lay an egg into a prepared cell and the welfare of this egg is taken care of by bees within the hive (adult winter bees). In three days, the egg will hatch out into a very tiny grub and these same bees will feed and cosset this grub for a period of five days or so. This passage of time, plus the feeding, will see the grub much enlarged and starting to fill the whole of the cell. At this juncture feeding will cease.

Step 2 will be the sealing of the cell with a wax capping. The enclosed grub will go through a period of metamorphosis, eventually emerging as a new bee ready to take its place within the colony.

However, the Varroa mite senses that the developed grub is about to be sealed in its cell so in it goes to be sealed in as well.

The mite carries out its own breeding cycle while it is enclosed with the developing grub. It draws sustenance from the body fluids of its host (the grub) and while doing so it passes on viruses that lead to sick and unhealthy bees emerging.

Often, the developed bee chews through the wax capping and emerges into the hive, but a number of the mites are always under-developed at this time, hence the pale (not brown) bodies I observe in the tray debris.

When and if spring does arrive, the queen bee will step up the egg laying process. This provides the mites with the opportunity to expand their numbers and I will find more immature dead mites along with mature ones.

There is more to the story of the close relationship between mite and bee, but I hope you get a rough idea of how things go.

As with last year, many colonies have come through winter but without a decent spell of spring weather, we may well have a repeat of last year's losses.

Fingers and legs are crossed.

The benefits of owning a cat...

HAVE you ever considered an older cat, instead of a kitten, as a companion?

Medical research has indicated stroking a cat can relieve stress and lower blood pressure.

We have a number of cats looking for loving homes, aged from six months to eight years old.

Even a cat of eight years would have approximately another 10 years of life, which might suit a much older person, and can give loving companionship.

All our cats have been neutered and microchipped. Some are a little nervous, as they are used to older people who might have had to give them up to go into homes themselves, leaving their companion behind.

These would adapt to a quiet, loving home environment.

Currently, we have an abundance of cats who are desperately in need of a new family, or people to care for them.

For an appointment or further information, please telephone Maesteg Animal Welfare Society on 01656 721496 or 01656 769855. Please leave a message on our answerphone if we are unavailable.

At the current time, we are unable to accommodate any more cats - we are desperately in need of homes!

We are now able to accept text donations. Text maws11 to 70070.

Hypnosis could help you quit

NATIONAL No Smoking Day is March 12, 2014.

If you smoke, how would life be if you didn't?

Would you have more energy; feel healthier - be able to put the money to better use? Not smell of stale tobacco?

Smokers often say that the 'sensible' part knows it is harmful to our health, but there's a part of us which urges us on to light up.

Often we smoke when we are stressed, anxious, depressed, bored, or just out of habit - and we manage to block that part of us screaming facts on how we are harming our bodies. Smokers regularly blame a part of them which sabotages their efforts to quit.

How would it feel to be able to quit smoking for ever?

If you make this decision to quit, I can work with you to give you the tools to ensure it is for ever. I offer one session of two hours' duration, including hypnosis, at a cost of £110.

Don't put it off - call Sue Pitman at Cardiff Hypnotherapy today to aim for a healthier future. Sessions available at Barefoot Studio, Llandow; The Business Centre, Barry and Wellfield Osteopathic Clinic, Cardiff.

Welcome to Newbold Solicitors

OUR legal surgery (held at our Barry office) has been a great success with many landlords finding themselves surprised at how little they actually know about housing law.

Many have left the surgery with the knowledge of how to manage their properties correctly. However, one theme runs through the legal surgery: "I have never heard of Newbold Solicitors; I did not know you were here".

So we would like to take the opportunity of introducing our firm to you. Newbold Solicitors firm was begun in 1999 by Glynis Newbold. The firm was based in Cwmbran and is very well respected in the Cwmbran/Newport area.

In 2012, Newbold Solicitors was purchased by Brendons Solicitors, merging the firms but keeping the Newbold name.

We have four offices covering the south Wales area. We are one of the busiest law firms in Wales for conveyancing and are often ranked in the top 10 spot.

We are a firm that covers most areas of law, with a number of very experienced solicitors.

A partner and housing department supervisor,

Catherine Hartland, was runner-up for the award of 'Best Woman in Law 2013' and was a finalist in 'Best Business Woman 2012'. Catherine has been invited to work with the University of Wales, and many local estate agents, landlords and housing providers.

Catherine says: "The reason Newbolds has been a success is down to having the right team. At Newbolds, we strive to be the best at what we do, we provide a unique service and aim to provide excellent client care."

"At Newbolds, we believe that regardless of the problems you are facing, we can provide practical, straightforward advice tailored to the needs of our clients."

Our Neath office recently hosted an evening event for local estate agents in the new Paprika Indian restaurant, to celebrate the recent opening of our new office. We are pleased to say the evening was a great success and were even joined by Osprey and Wales rugby stars Richard Hibbard and Dan Biggar (see pictures above), who are friends of Tony Lewis of our Neath office.

MAKING LIFE EASIER...

Have you made your will yet?

EVERY adult in the UK should consider making a Will, and here are some of the reasons why:

● Without a Will, the state directs who inherits your estate, so the people you wish to benefit may get nothing.

● Without a Will, if you are married, you may think that your estate will pass to your spouse in any event, but this is not necessarily the case.

● If you are not married to your partner, the law does not automatically recognise partners as having the same rights as husbands, wives and civil partners, and your partner may get nothing.

● If you have children, there may be uncertainty about who will look after or provide for them, should you die.

● Certain people could make a claim on your estate if you have no Will, because they may depend upon you financially.

● Inheritance tax issues may arise if not addressed in your Will.

Wills should be kept up to date and renewed upon any change of circumstances; for example, marriage, divorce, separation, death of a loved one, or upon having a child.

Excluding certain beneficiaries in your Will may also cause potential difficulties as they may have the right to make a claim against your estate. Special care is needed if you exclude persons who might expect to benefit under your Will.

Ensure that you have a Will in place and that it is up to date to avoid any undesired consequences and complications.

HOW 'IT' HELPS COMBAT LONELINESS

THE Older People's Commissioner for Wales' team saw first-hand this week how IT is being used to improve wellbeing and reduce loneliness and isolation among older people.

Sarah Rochira's team visited the Springbank Care Home on College Road in Barry, where volunteers from the Getting on With IT project visit twice a week to help residents to get online.

The project aims to help people who live in care homes and sheltered accommodation stay in touch with family and friends by email and Skype, expand their social network and surf the World Wide Web.

Sarah said: "For many older people, access to ongoing opportunities to develop and learn new skills is an essential element of maintaining their health, independence and well-being.

"Getting on With IT is a wonderful project run by the Vale Centre for voluntary services, which also helps to reduce loneliness by providing opportunities for older people to socialise.

"It opens up a new world to many older people, who are now able to increase contact with friends and family that they don't get to see very often and use the internet to improve their knowledge of a wide range of subjects."

Volunteers visit Springbank Care Home every Monday and Wednesday and link a laptop to a widescreen television, demonstrating what can be achieved using the internet.

When the Commissioner's team visited, 10 residents were using the internet to watch videos of Michael Buble and Charlie Chaplin, as well as searching for answers to a quiz they had recently taken part in.

Residents have also used Skype to speak to family and friends around the UK and in Canada.

The visit formed part of the Commissioner's Engagement Roadshow, which met with over 5,400 people at 180 events across Wales in 2013.

Maendy YFC scoops three trophies in a busy week!

A BUSY week for Maendy Young Farmers Club has rounded off three months of hard work and preparation for the annual Glamorgan Federation of Young Farmers Clubs' stage competition.

A well supported dress rehearsal on February 4 at Barry Memorial Hall kick-started a weekend full of singing, dancing and comic scenes.

Thanks go to Fiona Martin and Glamorgan Hunt for warming up the crowd with a quiz. 'Return to Paradise' follows Grandpa Sid who reminisces about the good old days of the fairground to his grandson Tommy, while they stare through the gates of Paradise Park, an abandoned fairground.

Unknown to them, the fairground is opened at midnight by a troop of freaks.

The next stop was the Grand Pavilion in Porthcawl, which saw the seven YFC clubs in Glamorgan go head-to-head for the opportunity to represent the county at the Wales finals in Llandudno next month.

Neath opened the two-night event followed by performances from Gelligaer, Maendy and Bridgend.

On the second evening, members and supporters returned to the Pavilion for more entertainment from Llantrisant, Wick and Gower.

Following this, judge Chris Jaeger gave his final adjudication and presentation of awards.

Maendy's efforts were rewarded in the form of three trophies – Emily Farr winning best actress; the award for best director/producer and, most importantly, the winning shield for the best overall performance.

The club extend thanks to all cast members, backstage helpers and parents – it really was a team effort!

However, our journey does not stop here!

On March 15, the cast and entourage will take the show on the road, travelling to Llandudno to challenge our counterparts from across Wales, hoping to do Glamorgan proud – and to add to Maendy's previous successes at this level in the drama competition.

Venue Cymru, Llandudno will host this year's Wales competition on March 15 – 16.

This is a fantastic opportunity for team building, raising the profile of Glamorgan Young Farmers and showcasing the talents that young people and the YFC organisation has to offer. For more information about Maendy YFC please visit www.maendy-yfc.com.

MARIE CURIE Cancer Care is appealing for people in the Vale of Glamorgan to donate an hour of their time this February and March to collect for the charity's annual Great Daffodil Appeal.

The appeal is Marie Curie's biggest fundraiser, which encourages everyone to give a donation and wear a daffodil pin in February and March.

The charity needs volunteer collectors to encourage people in the local community to wear a that daffodil pin and make that donation.

The money raised will help Marie Curie Nurses provide more free care to local people with terminal illnesses in their own homes and in the local Marie Curie Hospice.

Helen Mulhern, community fundraiser for Marie Curie Cancer Care, explained: "We need hundreds of people from all over south Wales to help with our collections this February and March.

"Donating just one or two hours of your time to the appeal will allow Marie Curie nurses provide more free care to terminally ill people and their families at the time when they most need support."

Marie Curie runs nine hospices nationwide and is a leader in research into the best ways of caring for people with terminal illness.

In addition to this, the charity designs and advises on end of life services and works to ensure that the best possible care and patient choice is at the heart of commissioning end of life care across the United Kingdom.

All Marie Curie services are completely free of charge. Around 70 per cent of the charity's income comes from donations with the balance of funds coming from the NHS.

To volunteer to collect for Marie Curie Cancer Care and support the Great Daffodil Appeal call the fundraising office on 02920 426068 or visit the website at: www.mariecurie.org.uk/daffodil; like Marie Curie at: www.facebook.com/mariecurieuk.

'Heritage museum needs our support'

WRITE in support of the Glamorgan Wartime Heritage Museum based in Barry, at the Barry Island Railway Station venue.

The museum is asking to use the existing tourist information centre on the island - and this would be an ideal site, if it is available.

But it is not the only building in Barry standing empty. A few yards away from the museum is the old pumping station; restored at public expense, this building has been standing empty since the work was completed.

This year marks the centenary of the Great War and during the coming months the Heritage Museum will no doubt play a large part in commemorative events. Ade Pitman and her team of volunteers have created a badly-needed museum here in Barry. It falls to the council, and all of us, to give them all the support we can.

McConaughey shines in Dallas Buyers Club

THERE was a troubling spell, around 2009, where the promise of Matthew McConaughey's acting career was on the precipice of disappearing.

Phoning in his laconic charm to serve weak romantic 'comedies' like Ghosts Of Girlfriends Past and Failure To Launch, and perfunctory action fare like Fools Gold and Sahara, McConaughey seemed destined to forever be filled under failing to live up to his talents.

But then he hit a hot streak, starting with 2011's The Lincoln Lawyer, which has shown little signs of stopping. He has been Oscar nominated for his latest performance in Dallas Buyers Club.

Based on a true story, McConaughey plays Ron Woodruff, a man who is diagnosed with AIDS. Stunned at the battle, and costs, of medication, Woodruff takes the medication into his own hands, travelling over the border to Mexico, in order to help himself, and other sufferers - but Woodruff's plans are constantly under the gaze of those who aren't keen on his 'Robin Hood' mentality...

While Oscar season often sees true-life stories come to the fore, the tale of Ron Woodruff is certainly one that deserves to be told, especially seeing as a man whose later life was a battle on behalf of those unfortunate to be diagnosed with a life-threatening illness, came from such a low-key background.

There is more than a hint of Robin Hood about the character of Woodruff - and indeed, screenwriters Melissa Wallack and Craig Borten amp up the narrative drive of this being a man battling against 'the man', or larger elements that are unable or unwilling to do what should be the right thing.

But more than that, Dallas Buyers Club is a film about a man whose life change comes as a knock-on effect of his brush with mortality - whose desire to do good comes from, at its core, the urge to help himself.

While Woodruff is deservedly celebrated for what he achieved, the film rarely depicts its protagonist as the hero, instead focusing on the humanity of his character and how he develops into someone attempting to battle the system.

With his desperately slim frame (having lost a large amount of weight for the role) Matthew McConaughey may be ticking the Oscar checklist; but this is a performance that is gritty, real and wonderfully engaging. There's no award-chasing here from the actor, whose fine run of form just keeps coming.

His natural charisma comes to the fore, but as Woodruff battles the perceptions of the disease he's been diagnosed with (face masks and people being afraid of his spit just two examples); and he starts to realise the severity of the hand he's been dealt with, the surface bluster blows away and McConaughey's performance captures the fragility of the situation achingly well.

While the rest of the cast all deliver good performances, Jared Leto is easily the pick of the bunch as transgender Rayon, a character who falls into Woodruff's life but whose plight and situation make him the perfect foil as they form an odd couple alliance.

Leto is a very underrated actor, but deserves the plaudits he's been receiving here, for the performance is one of strength and courage in saddening circumstance that refuses to paint the character as a victim. Instead, Leto is as vivid and full of life as can be, his mortality something that lingers subtly in the background.

Jean-Marc Vallee's direction is beautifully low-key, focusing on the gritty trailer trash Woodruff and company emanate from, the location becoming a character in itself as the parched visuals marry perfectly with the subject material.

He infuses the material with moments of wonder and quiet emotion, rather than plug too deeply into melodrama, Vallee concentrating on life rather than death, lending the film a wonderful degree of warmth amidst the physical and legal battles.

With a sense of gallows humour, and the focus on the indefatigable human spirit, there is much to like and admire about Dallas Buyers Club. Its sentiment isn't cheap, its warmth is hard-earned - but it makes you feel, and delivers plenty of substance in telling a most beguiling, and uplifting story.

VERDICT - A wonderfully engaging film, Dallas Buyers Club houses yet another superb turn by Matthew McConaughey and a surprisingly robust, yet tender, support role from Jared Leto. Yet beneath the performances is a story deftly told, full of emotion and fire, but without offering easy platitudes, wonderfully directed by Jean-Marc Vallee; a superb piece of filmmaking.

Highly recommended. SEE THIS IF YOU LIKED: Erin Brockovich (2000), Milk (2008)

The Billy Fury phenomenon

ONE of the best-selling recording artists of the 1960s, Billy Fury enjoyed a string of hit singles totalling a remarkable 332 weeks in the British charts.

Health problems since childhood led to the singer's untimely death on January 28, 1983, but it is reassuring to know that his name and music is not forgotten. The Billy Fury Years is quite simply 'The Ultimate Billy Fury show to ever hit the stage'.

Hailed as "the best Fury since Fury", Michael King and his talented group of musicians take a journey through the musical career of Britain's best loved rock 'n roll legend.

The two-hour show is filled with Billy Fury's greatest hits, delivered live in true Fury style.

Billy Fury was born Ronald William Wycherley, in Liverpool on April 17, 1940. He was an internationally successful British pop singer from the late 1950s to the early 1960s, and remained an active songwriter until the 1980s. Rheumatic fever, which damaged his heart, contributed to his death in 1983.

In the 1960s, Fury had more Decca hits than any other artist, including the Rolling Stones. He equalled The Beatles' record of 24 hits and spent a total of 332 weeks on the UK charts.

MAKING YOUR HOUSE A HOME

MAKING YOUR HOUSE A HOME

TIPS on how we can protect our plants from the worst of the weather - plus, find out what else needs doing in the garden this week.

by HANNAH STEPHENSON
WHILE the incessant rain may have left gardeners' water butts overflowing, it has also inevitably claimed its share of casualties.

Waterlogged plants, nutrients leached from the soil and pest and disease problems can all result from consistently wet conditions, and those gardeners with poor drainage systems are likely to be the hardest hit.

When soil is waterlogged, plants literally drown. Water fills all the air spaces between the soil particles and this prevents oxygen from reaching the roots.

In turn, this causes the soil to stagnate and prevents root growth.

If plants look a bit sickly after a week or two of solid rain, the minerals may have been washed away. Restore the vigour of plants by giving them a dose of liquid seaweed fertiliser.

"It's absolutely vital that one doesn't walk on the soil when it's this wet because you compact it and destroy its structure.

"Don't dig it or disturb it but leave it to its own devices until the tide goes out," says Guy Barter, head of RHS advisory service.

Plants likely to be worst affected include those from dry climates such as lavender and rosemary, while lawns can also suffer as a result of excessively wet weather, he notes.

Don't mow the lawn in wet weather or even walk on it, as the pressure can cause structural damage, especially to those grown from seed in spring. Most established lawns can cope with excessive rainfall.

Mr Barter advises gardeners to shelter pots of lavender and other container plants by a wall, or even put waterlogged pots on their side for a few days to allow them to drain a little. You may need to repot them in the spring, as the compost may be spent.

However, the wet weather isn't all doom and gloom for gardeners.

"Paradoxically, lawns will be growing in these temperatures," points out Guy Barter.

"In the vegetable garden, vegetables will still be growing, so leeks will thrive and cabbages will still be swelling slowly through this weather. By April, many things will have come good."

Bulbs shouldn't be affected by the continuous rainfall either, he says.

"They are really good at surviving this sort of thing. Snowdrops and daffodils in particular are excellent at adapting. Bulbs are generally very tolerant of wet soil.

"We might even get a better show of bulbs because in conditions like this they will be photosynthesising in the increased light as the year progresses."

Herbaceous perennials renew a large part of their root system annually, so they can recover from soggy conditions.

Perennials also have shallow root systems so they can flourish in situations with a high water table.

Most, including those such as hardy geraniums and autumn-flowing asters, that do not normally live in wet environments can cope well with wet conditions.

Plants with big, lush green leaves thrive in really wet weather. Rodgersias, rheum (ornamental rhubarb) and hostas are well-known moisture lovers. Conversely, avoid anything with small, leathery or grey leaves.

Alpines, particularly the succulent ones or those with hairy leaves such as sedums and some sempervivums (houseleeks), are vulnerable to wet weather, so if you haven't yet covered them with cloches, do so before it's too late.

Don't plant bare-root shrubs such as roses until the soil has dried out a little, Barter advises.

"Gardeners will have rose bushes and trees and fruit bushes and turf ready to go out and they must keep that protected, because it will be a rush trying to get everything planted when the soil finally dries up in February, March or even April. Gardeners need to keep their new plants in good condition ready for the happy day when they can put them out," he says.

Anyone who has bought a bare-root plant should make sure the roots don't dry out in the meantime, he urges. "Take it out of the packaging and pot it up or wrap it in wet newspaper or straw, put a plastic bag over the roots and leave it in a shed ready to go out in its final position later on."

While fruit trees love the moisture, the relatively warm weather may lead to earlier blossom, not a good thing in our climate, because of the late frosts we so often suffer.

Gardeners who want to avoid too many casualties in future years may consider building raised beds, improving soil drainage and planting species which are happy in wet weather.

It may be worth thinking about creating a bog garden too, which has the added bonus of attracting wildlife - plant irises, carex, gunnera, primulas, hostas, rheum and rodgersia.

work at this time of year because the slugs aren't moving enough to find them."

Some diseases such as leaf spots persist on plants which are in leaf during wet weather. If you find outbreaks, prune out infected material.

Lastly, as the rain will have washed many of the nutrients out of the soil, give it a pick-me-up with a fertiliser rich in potassium, such as sulphate of potash or rose fertiliser, and your plants should come through the torrent of rain with few problems.

Creating the perfect orangery. It's all in the design...

When it comes to adding flexible living space to your home, there can be little doubt that an orangery truly offers the wow factor.

Today's orangeries come in a multitude of options. From the sleek 'grand design' of modern aluminium, to hassle-free PVC-U or the timeless looks of timber, there is something to suit every home.

However, aesthetics aren't the only consideration. To build a room that you will love all year round, technical design is crucial.

At Securahome, our experts take the time to discover exactly how you will use your orangery, before creating a 3D design to help bring your vision to life.

To cut your carbon footprint and ensure that your new orangery is as comfortable at Christmas as it is at Easter, demands the highest possible thermal efficiency.

At Securahome we use only the latest ultra-efficient glass in our orangeries; then we build in insulated floors, ceilings and walls to make the room as thermally efficient as possible with today's building technology.

When it comes to the roof, we can build slate or tiled roofs, add in a lantern or skylights, or create a full glass roof for a spectacular view of the stars. To make sure that view stays uninterrupted, we can even add in self-cleaning glass.

From the initial design, through to planning to the building, electrics, plumbing and finishing, Securahomeproject manages every aspect to ensure the process is as relaxing and comfortable as the orangery itself.

'USE TREES TO COMBAT FLOODS'

says the Woodland Trust (Coed Cadw)

ANGHARAD EVANS of the Woodland Trust (Coed Cadw) last week handed over a petition bearing 2,700 names, calling on the Assembly and the Welsh Government to support the planting of 10 million trees across Wales, in places where they will do most to reduce flood risk.

The names were collected online and at various shows and events last year. To coincide with this, the Trust is also publishing a major report, 'Holding back the waters', showing the huge potential for the Welsh Government and its new environmental body Natural Resources Wales, to use woodlands and trees as an effective, and cost effective, means of reducing flood risk to some of the 357,000 properties in Wales, a sixth of the building stock, that are currently at risk from flooding – alongside more traditional hard engineering flood defences where appropriate.

Jerry Langford,

Wales director of the Woodland Trust said: "I'm delighted to announce that we in the Woodland Trust are ready to put our money where our mouth is and provide £20,000 towards the cost of a scheme, or schemes, in Wales, which can help demonstrate the effectiveness of using trees to reduce flood risk and improve water quality."

MEET BART, DAI, HONEY AND DUSTY!

TO celebrate national nest box week (February 14 – 21) rangers will be holding a bird box-making session at the Forest Lodge, Porthkerry Country Park, on February 15, and at Cosmeston on February 16.

Sessions at both venues will be run between 11am and 2pm. Owls4U will also be on site to display and talk about their rescued owls Bart, Dai, Honey and Dusty. There is no charge for the owl display; however, Owls4U would be grateful for any donations on the day.

It will cost £4 to make your own box and you can also buy pre-constructed boxes for £5 each.

GIVE YOUR HOME A NEW LOOK BY DECLUTTERING!

Why wait until spring for a clear-out? Decluttering with some clever storage solutions could bring calm and harmony into your home, says GABRIELLE FAGAN.

It's not unusual at this time of year to feel as though your possessions are winning the space war and you're being squeezed out.

But of all the aspirational (if unrealistic) goals we set ourselves, decluttering and getting your house organised is, arguably, the most achievable.

Nothing acts more like a tonic for the hungover soul than a jolly good tidy," says Barbara Genda, founder and principal designer at Barbara Genda Bespoke Furniture.

"Research suggests that clutter and mess causes us untold stress. Stuffed cupboards, dishevelled drawers, haphazardly strewn and displaced possessions without a designated 'living' space all culminate into a loud, unrelenting visual 'noise' that can make us feel boxed-in, overwhelmed and even anxious."

Luckily, there are a multitude of solutions for organising mess – particularly if you're a natural hoarder – from stackable boxes to sophisticated storage systems.

"Pack all of that mess away and immediately you'll discern the positive effects."

"You'll have a calmer environment in which you can relax, be productive and at the very least, think straight," she says.

Things you can do

Under-stairs sort-out

"Under the stairs is the definitive dumping ground for assorted, unused odds and ends," says Genda.

"Often, you can't seem to open the door without a golf bag spilling heavy clubs onto your feet, or a sea of shoes tumbling out."

Top tip: As a short-term solution, put hooks inside the cupboard door for hanging up bags and get transparent boxes for larger items, so they stay dust free and you can view contents without having to rummage.

Free-up living space

"Decluttering isn't about throwing everything away," says Simon Glanville, managing director of storage specialists, Store.

"It's about losing what's useless and ugly in order to have space for things that are useful and beautiful. But it's easy to feel overwhelmed and keep putting off that clear-up," he adds.

"Start with one single drawer or shelf at a time. Set a timer for 20 minutes and stop when the alarm goes off."

"Always tidy up first thing in the morning, so once the chore is done, you're free to enjoy the rest of your day."

Top tip: Always de-clutter before buying new storage, otherwise you won't know the right solution for your needs.

Explore under-used spaces, like landings, and consider boarding a loft so you can store seasonal items.

Book lovers

"Books can look beautiful when displayed properly so avoid stacking them too deep, or leaving them in piles everywhere," says Marianne Shillingford, creative director and head of the design service at Dulux.

"You can work on the principle that if you haven't looked at individual titles in a couple of years, you're probably unlikely to read them again, and some could be consigned to a charity shop."

"Store books so you can find them easily – alphabetically, by genre or those you've recently read. Look for different ways to display them; shelves over and around doorways look particularly effective."

Top tip: Paint an old bookcase, or look on eBay, Freecycle or local charity shops for second hand ones and do a make over. Fashionable, low mid-century sideboards work well too.

Uncork a solution

Those who take their wine seriously realise the need to store bottles correctly, while even if you have half a dozen bottles kept aside they can take up room.

A recent survey by self storage service, LoveSpace, found around 20 per cent of Britons have wine storage on their wish-list, and nearly 18 per cent want a mini-bar.

"Streamlining your interior to make the best use of your space will work wonders on a room," says Claire Hornby, creative stylist at Barker & Stonehouse.

"A crate, or a bespoke wine cupboard if you have room, will avoid breakages and allow you to manage a growing collection which can gather dust and look unattractive if it's just standing on a shelf or cupboard surface."

THE eleventh Vale of Glamorgan Council Building Control Group 'Building Excellence' awards were presented at the Mount Sorrel Hotel, Barry, on January 31.

The evening was attended by Coun Lis Burnett, cabinet member for regeneration, innovation and planning and transportation, Coun Fred Johnson, chairman of the planning committee and the Mayor of the Vale, Coun Margaret Wilkinson.

Also present were Rob Thomas, the director of development services for the council, and the Building Control team, together with the sponsors of the event, Mount Sorrel Hotel, Jan Irving of the Glamorgan GEM, Nina and Rob of Nina Estate Agents, Paul and Helen Thomas of ACD Recycling and Skip Hire, and GreenBuild Consult.

The evening was hosted by Marcus Goldsworthy, the operational manager for development and building control at the Vale Council.

Mr Goldsworthy remarked: "The nominations in every category were of the very highest quality and I congratulate all the winners, who will now have the chance to compete against the winners from other councils in south Wales in the 'South Wales Building Excellence' awards 2014 at the Vale of Glamorgan Hotel and Spa Resort, Hensol, on April 25, hosted by Owen Money.

"I am also hopeful that some of these schemes will go forward to the 'Building Excellence' award national finals, in London in November, especially as we were lucky enough to have a national winner in 2013.

"The awards have shown the quality of work undertaken throughout the Vale, and we are proud to be rewarding and encouraging quality in the construction industry.

Our thanks must also go out to the sponsors, who have enabled the event to be firmly placed in the annual diary."

The evening also raised a massive £500 on the night for MacMillan Cancer Group.

Penarth Computer Club – more hints and tips

I PREVIOUSLY noted that the third golden rule of using computers is 'keep learning'; our talk showed 10 useful things new users could benefit from learning (and long-standing users revisiting). There are many more tips, of course, and we will look at more as we go.

So far, we have aimed at enabling users to get things done. Once the basics are mastered and we can actually do something useful, the novelty wears off a little and we notice the little niggles of repeated tasks and interruptions and delays. Something can be done about that.

For example, breaking off from your work need not be a big bother.

For short or sudden breaks, I offered the tip that holding down the Windows key and pressing L (Win+L) will instantly show only a log-on window that requires a password.

Your work is not exposed. When you re-start, entering your password will return you to the place where you left off and all ready to continue.

For longer interruptions, you can get the same service. Instead of closing any files or applications, simply select the Hibernate option instead of Shut Down. Once the computer has hibernated it can be switched off completely and still keep everything ready to resume once it is switched on and the password entered. All the applications and documents that were open when it hibernated will be reopened exactly as they were previously and you can resume precisely where you left off.

When you get used to the construction of a document or a spreadsheet, it is worth applying some formatting for emphasis. This could be putting a paragraph in a different font, or colour or italics, or emboldened or underlined or a different size – or any combination of them. You might want to apply special formats or borders to a table or to cells in a spreadsheet. The process might take a bit of time to get the effect required and might involve several settings applied to the same text or object.

But what if you decide you would like to repeat the exercise in several places? The last thing you fancy doing is repeating all the work you did to set up the special appearance. You don't have to work so hard.

Simply click on any piece of the already-formatted text; click on the Format Painter button on the standard toolbar (it shows a paintbrush) and then highlight the text you want to 'paint'.

That text instantly takes on all the attributes of the original selection. The Format Painter is automatically cancelled.

If you want to repeat the process several times, double-click on Format Painter and it will paint each selection. Clicking Format Painter again cancels it.

Format Painter is a wonderful labour-saving button especially with Autosaves, but they deserve their own treatment.

Our next meeting is on Tuesday, February 25 at All Saints Lesser Hall, Victoria Square, Penarth, at 7.30pm for 8pm. Let's look at the stars with Mike J. Visitors always welcome. See penarthcomputerclub.co.uk.

NEW EXHIBITS ARRIVE AT BARRY TOURIST RAILWAY

THIS month, there have been new arrivals at Barry Tourist Railway – and one popular exhibit has returned home.

The unique steam railcar was taken back to its home at Churnet Valley Railway in Staffordshire, having been at Barry since last August.

Many visitors enjoyed rides along the lines at Barry and especially with Father Christmas last year. Last Friday (February 7) two additions to the collection of motive power arrived.

A former yellow maintenance unit from the Severn Tunnel, and a diesel unit from the Canton depot in Cardiff both arrived by road.

Report and photographs by Mike Wilcock.

Tragic legend behind the feast of St Valentine

FEBRUARY is the second month of the year on the Julian and Gregorian calendars, and it acquired its name from the Latin word februa – purification, superlatively making it a Roman month.

Along with January, February was not on the original datebook, but was added to the calendar by Numa Pompilius around 713BC.

In Welsh, the month of February is known as Y Mis Bach, which means little month as it is the only one to have 28 days. Chewfor is the equivalent in Welsh for this dreary time of year, as it is the shortest month except for leap year – which extends it to 29 every four years.

Around 400 years ago, February was called Feverell, and 100 years later it changed to Februer. February, as we spell it today, only came into existence around 100 years ago.

Sol-monarth was an Old English term for February which means mud month, as the weather is gloomy at this time of year. It is meteorologically the third and final month of the winter season.

Sol-monarth (cake month) was an ancient event where cakes were offered to the gods. It was also known as sprout and kale monarth, as planted cabbage and kale would begin to sprout.

The birthstone of February is the amethyst, its flowers the violet and common primrose and zodiac signs Aquarius (until 18th) and Pisces.

The Christian festival of Candlemas (festival of lights) is celebrated on the second day of the month. This was because during ancient times, the Christmas festival lasted for 40 days – until the second day in February.

It was a day when all candles to be used in churches for the year ahead would be lit and blessed, in the belief that the flames would protect its people against plague, illness and famine.

In ancient times, it was known as the Feast of Lights, in celebration of the increasing strength of the sun as winter gives way to spring.

Superstitious rituals were performed from 12 to 14 as it was believed that these dates were borrowed from January. If they were stormy days, the weather for the year ahead would be good; whereas if fine weather prevailed the climate would be unpleasant.

The renowned snow-drop begins to appear around landscapes in February. This beautiful white flower is believed to have evolved when Adam and Eve were expelled from The Garden of Eden. This was because an angel appeared to give Eve hope and guidance.

In the hope of banishing cold winters, the angel transformed snowflakes into flowers, proving that winter does eventually end and that spring is around the corner.

This can be seen in the old rhyme: 'The snowdrop, in purest white array, first rears its head on Candlemas day'.

On February 8, 1855, the people of our country were petrified one morning to discover peculiar footprints in the snow in the shape of a cloven hoof. Could they have been terrified because this was deemed as a sign that the devil had visited earth and could cast his spell of evil amongst humankind?

The most famous date in February is the 14th, the feast of St Valentine, which is celebrated in many countries around the world.

There are a few variations as to who St Valentine actually was; but the most likely was in honour of the individual who took it upon himself to challenge a Roman Emperor who banned soldiers from marrying during the third century.

He became a campaigner for the soldiers, but was executed for his outspokenness in 469AD. Pope Gelasius declared this date in honour of St Valentine.

Another legend states that St Valentine was executed for his Christian beliefs and before he died, he penned a note to his lover saying 'From Your Valentine'.

The day became associated with romance some time in the Middle Ages.

Shakespeare's quote from his tragic play Romeo and Juliet seems to celebrate love in an adoring fashion:

'Love is a smoke raised with the fume of sighs; being purged, a fire sparkling in lovers' eyes; being vex'd a sea nourish'd with lovers' tears: what is it else? a madness most discreet, A choking gall and a preserving sweet.'

The Romans and Celts observed February as the start of the spring season.

Shrove Tuesday is a tradition hailing the day before Lent, with the fasting custom marking 40 days before Easter.

Also known as Mischief Day, it was a time when church bells would ring out, a game of football was played by all and feasting and revelry were celebrated. Shrove Tuesday 2014 falls on March 4.

Ash Wednesday was named after the ash tree when schoolchildren would carry a piece of twig in their pocket for luck. Failure to carry out this tradition would result in their feet being trodden on.

The Friday following Ash Wednesday was once called Kissing Friday. It was a day when schoolboys were allowed to kiss girls without fear of punishment. This custom lasted until the 1940s, when the war years wilted it away.

But fact or fiction? Only you can decide ...

Tory councillors launch anti-merger petition

THE leader of the Vale of Glamorgan Conservative Group has launched a petition rejecting a suggested merger of the local authority with neighbouring Cardiff.

It follows the publishing of a report commissioned by the Welsh Government which recommended the merger as part of controversial plans to reduce the number of local authorities in Wales.

The petition is available online at - <http://www.ipetitions.com/petition/handsoffthevale>.

Conservative group leader, Coun John Thomas, said: "When the Williams Commission was established we were keen to look with an open mind at what proposals were brought forward.

"The cost of politics does need to be reduced and public services must be delivered efficiently and effectively in the best possible way to meet the needs of local residents.

"However, in the case of the Vale, the Conservative council group are clear that we do not believe a merger with Cardiff would be in the best interests of residents. The Vale is a self-sufficient local authority which, broadly speaking, delivers excellent services to its residents.

"While mergers may be appropriate for some councils in certain cases, the Vale does not habitually under-perform and has never been in danger of slipping into 'special measures' like some other authorities.

"We are clear that there is no local need or desire to take the decision-making process away from locally-elected and accountable councillors."

Coun Thomas added: "Naturally, it is a matter for other local parties to make their own views clear on the findings of this report, but I sincerely hope that we get broad support for this petition, which strongly rejects any Welsh Government moves to merge the Vale with Cardiff."

Councillor helps raise funds to boost the kitty!

CAT-LOVING Coun Ian Hibble visited Bridgend Adoption Centre to hand over a cheque on behalf of Brackla Community Council for £223.13, after making Cats Protection one of his charities of the year.

Sue Dobbs, centre manager, said: "We are a very busy adoption centre and achieve incredible results finding loving homes for more than 1,250 cats and kittens every year.

"However, we constantly need to raise additional funds to ensure we maintain the highest standards of care of all our cats.

"We are very grateful to Coun Ian Hibble for raising money on our behalf. If we didn't receive such wonderful support from our local community, so many more cats would remain needlessly homeless," she added.

The money was raised during events in Brackla including a fun day and firework display. The events were organised and run by the people of Brackla.

Coun Hibble said: "My own cat Patrick came from Cats Protection; it is a pleasure to be able to support this vital charity as one of my charities as chair of Brackla Community Centre, and I'd like to take this opportunity to thank the community of Brackla for their generous support."

Bridgend adoption centre holds over 200 cats and kittens and currently has over 80 cats ready for adoption.

To offer a kitty a home, please telephone 01656 724396 or visit: bridgend.cat.org.uk

For further information, please contact Sue Dobbs on 01656 726621 or email: bridgend.manager@cat.s.org.uk

Honest finder returned ring

READING last week's GEM about Georgia Thomas' appeal for the return of her handbag has made me put pen to paper to relate an incident that happened to me.

On Thursday, February 6, I shopped at Lidl in Barry and on my return home, discovered that my signet ring was not on my hand.

On Friday morning, I returned to Lidl to enquire if a ring had been found. I suspected that in taking my gloves off while shopping, the ring could have slipped off my finger.

To my great joy and relief, an assistant went to look and returned with my ring. Some kind soul had discovered it and handed it in to a member of the staff.

I would very much like to thank the person that handed it in, and I do hope that Georgia Thomas will be as lucky as me.

A Hughes, Penarth.

Engineering ace

B A R R Y Comprehensive School's Faculty of Technology has congratulated Nicholas Sherrin on receiving the South Wales Institute of Engineers Award for Excellence.

Nicholas was an outstanding GCSE pupil and has chosen to continue his studies in the Barry Sixth Form.

Meet the author

LAST term, year-7 students were invited to Barry library to meet authors Michelle Briscoe and Cathy Farr.

Each form class travelled down to the library where they met the author and were treated to a reading from their novel.

Students were given the chance to ask questions and find out what inspired both authors to write their novels. They also had the opportunity to purchase a novel and have it signed by the author.

Cathy Farr, author of fantasy adventures Moon Chase and Moon Crossing, spoke to the pupils about her books and about how she became a writer. Some students were lucky enough to meet the inspiration behind her books – her Irish Wolfhound, Mojo!

Barry Library also promoted some of the great facilities they have for young people and encouraged pupils to join the library if they hadn't already.

The students thoroughly enjoyed the trip and we look forward to visiting the library again in the future.

7ANB had missed out on seeing Cathy and Mojo at Barry Library, so they made a special visit to the school, much to the delight of students and staff.

Workshops for media hopefuls

A SERIES of workshops co-ordinated by the ArtsConnect collaboration with Barry YMCA, and funded by the Arts Council of Wales, aims to help young people aged 16 – 25 to gain experience in music and media.

As part of the course, the ArtsConnect collaboration between local authority arts services in Bridgend county borough, Merthyr, Rhondda Cynon Taf and the Vale of Glamorgan is assembling a media team for the SONIG Youth Music Industry's Young Promoters Network (YPN) initiative, which supports young people to gain experience of putting on gigs and events for people their age.

Coun Lyn Morgan, cabinet member for wellbeing, said: "The ArtsConnect collaboration has allowed our arts service to deliver some fantastic programmes in partnership with their colleagues in Merthyr, Rhondda Cynon Taf and the Vale of Glamorgan county boroughs, and I'm sure this course will be no exception.

"The Young Promoters Network has a strong track record of giving young people opportunities to gain experience of working in the creative industries, and this series of workshops will give local youngsters a useful head start in the race towards obtaining a career in media."

The course will take place at The Hub (Barry YMCA) between 10.30am – 3pm from February 23 – 27. Transport will be provided for participants from Bridgend county borough.

Seaview Lads angling results

FISHING has been grim since the start of the year but anglers have persevered nonetheless, often turning out in numbers.

Rockling have made up many bags with odds 'n sods accounting for the balance.

Kevin Salah landed an excellent cod of 5lb 12oz to win one competition, but this was definitely an exception to the rule.

Nice to see some baby codling being caught but with the amount of freshwater coming down channel we await our first pike!

It would be nice to think that things can only get better except February usually sees a downturn in sport!

Results (dates approx):

January 5: 1st K Salah 5lb 12oz; 2nd G Morgan 1lb 13oz; 3rd R Harding 1lb 4oz; 4th A Harris 1lb 2oz; 5th S Davies 1lb 1oz; 6th G Griffiths 1lb 0oz; M Bjegovic 1lb 0oz.

Indoor bowls season has ended at Sully

SULLY Indoor Bowling Club completed their league season with a 123-111 win over Taff Ely at Sully on Saturday, gaining 18 out of the 22 points available.

Sully won five of their 10 league games and were unlucky not to have managed a couple of more wins, losing two games after leading into the last couple of ends.

Saturday was slightly different, with Sully holding a comfortable 17-shot lead after 15 ends. Taff Ely then upped their game and started to reduce the deficit but Sully played solidly to win overall by 12 shots.

Once again, the rink skipped by Martin Clarke was backbone of the Sully team, winning by 16 shots, ably supported by Dave Curtis, Roy Richards and Graham Cogbill.

The rink of Brian Griffiths was another to perform well. With only one in the game after the 14th end, they picked up seven shots on the 15th end then went on to win by nine.

The other winning rinks were those of Dave Snelling and Mel Newman. Both started well and maintained their form, each winning by four shots.

Special mention must go to Des Bannister, who helped out at the last minute due to a late withdrawal and had a superb game at lead on Mel Newman's rink.

Overall, the league season proved difficult due to availability issues. On occasions, the club had barely enough names to put out a team. With more commitment from other club members, Sully would be able to select teams good enough to gain promotion. A big thanks must go to those who supported the stadium team throughout the season.

WIBA TRIPLES AND PAIRS COMPETITIONS.

Sully Stadium will hold five rinks of triples on Thursday, February 20, at 6.30pm and on Sunday, February 23, the second and third rounds of the pairs will be held, starting with eight games at 10am, with the winners continuing at 2pm.

There are a number of internationals playing including Robert Weale and John Price. Food (and bar) available from 9.15am.

CRICKET IN BARRY

BARRY Athletic Cricket Club start pre-season nets on Sunday, February 23, at Colcot Sports Centre, Colcot Road, Barry, 12pm till 1pm.

All players, current, old and new are welcome. The club is also looking for match sponsors. Anyone interested should contact Mark Rees on 07570 135831 or e-mail markrees509@hotmail.com

Two narrow defeats for Penarth hockey teams

FACING teams close to them in their respective divisions of the Davis Wood Hockey League, Penarth Hockey Club's two sides both slipped to defeat at the weekend.

PENARTH 2 - 3 CARDIFF & MET C

After earning a good point away at Hereford last week, Penarth's 1st XI turned their attention to old rivals Cardiff & Met C on Saturday, looking to repeat the result of October's fixture.

Once again, weather conditions were less than favourable at Barry Sports Centre, and the home side, as has become a habit, started slowly. This time, the tardiness proved costly, as Cardiff grabbed two early goals.

Conceding the second goal seemed to shock Penarth into action, and the Vale's only senior men's club finally got their act together.

Their best phase of play came just before halftime and, having put the Cardiff defence under some concerted pressure, they were rewarded with a fantastic individual goal from Phil Lane, who drove in from the right-hand side of the D and slotted the ball in the bottom corner from his reverse side.

Penarth took that momentum into the second half and were now the better team. However, despite enjoying the greater possession, the Bears could not find a way past a stubborn Cardiff defence and, just as they appeared to be back in the game, they allowed the visitors to catch them with a counter-attack that led to a decisive third goal.

Desperate to salvage something from the game, Penarth pushed forward in greater numbers, eventually managing to get a goal back through Sam Wooding, who tapped the ball home after it had bounced around the Cardiff 'D', but it was too little too late as precious points went begging.

The result leaves Penarth still holding onto fourth position in the De Cymru & The Marches One division, but now with their opponents having pulled level on points ahead of a tough few weeks for the Vale side.

GWENT A 3 - 1 PENARTH A

The second XI headed for Cwmbran on the back of a 6-2 thumping handed out to Neath the previous weekend, but knew a repeat would be tough against a better-placed side, and with a handful of players missing.

The weather decided to take a turn for the worse but squally showers did little to dampen a competitive match between the teams occupying fourth and fifth places in the De Cymru Two table.

Gwent had taken the return fixture by four goals to two, but the result had been distorted by two late strikes as Penarth chased victory.

Incredibly, however, a similar storyline played out second time around, as the home side went into an early lead courtesy of a shot from the edge of the D, but were then held by a resolute Penarth defence, anchored by the central pairing of Richard Bromiley and Zbig Sobierski.

Turning around just the one goal adrift provided the impetus for captain Rob Harrison's halftime speech but, despite renewed effort from the Vale side, it was Gwent who scored next, this time taking advantage of a penalty corner move that left the visitors' defence exposed to a shot into the far corner.

The goal was somewhat against the run of play as Penarth gradually enjoyed more possession and pressure, but chances on goal were lacking until a quick ball from the back was carried on by Tom Davies and Dave Watkins, with the latter driving to the bye-line before providing a cross that was converted from close range by Dave Thomas.

Sensing a comeback, Penarth decided to once again throw extra men forward, leaving a back three of Graeme Jones, Craig Llewellyn and Ian Smith to contain the Gwent threat.

Unable to produce an equaliser, however, the Vale side eventually came unstuck as a breakthrough overwhelmed the defence, leaving goalkeeper Calum Grant unable to deny the home side a game-ending third goal.

The defeat left Penarth's overall position unchanged, and the Vale side now has a week off to prepare for the trip to new league leaders Abergavenny.

The 1st XI, meanwhile, face a similar challenge this weekend, travelling to top of the table – and free-scoring – Lydney, looking to avenge a heavy home defeat earlier in the campaign.

Penarth Hockey Club welcomes new, old and returning players, umpires, supporters, friends and helpers, regardless of age and ability. Training takes place on the artificial turf at Barry Sport Centre every Wednesday, with the juniors in action between 6pm and 7pm and the seniors between 7pm and 8pm.

Vale girls hold aloft the trophy.

Coach Luke Williams is hoping for more success for the club over the coming years.

"This is a great achievement and hopefully just the start for our club as we develop over the next five years. We have put excellent foundations in place within the grassroots section of our club with around 60 girls playing between the ages of 7-12."

The club trains on a weekly basis in the Barry area and are always welcoming new players on a regular basis. If you would like to get involved in girls football please email: valegirlsfc@gmail.com or visit the club website www.valegirlsfc.co.uk

Cottrell Park short-listed in golf awards

COTTRELL Park Golf Resort has been shortlisted for the national Golfer's Choice Golf Club of the Year awards.

The Golfer's Choice award scheme recognises the very best of UK golf clubs through votes and scores provided by club members.

From nominated UK-wide golf clubs, the St Nicholas club received votes and scores that has seen it achieve a top ten position in the category, 'best golf club for members'.

Gaynor Openshaw-Smith, sales and marketing director at Cottrell Park Golf Resort, said: "We were delighted to have been shortlisted for an industry award, but most importantly it has provided an insight into the level of customer satisfaction at the resort; it seems that our members are pleased with the value, level of service, facilities and golf experience they receive with us - an excellent achievement for our whole team."

From ten finalists, the award winners will now be selected by a panel of industry judges.

A spokesman for the awards said: "We believe it's not just the quality of the course that makes a good golf club, it's a combination of customer service, facilities and value for money which all combine to give a great golfing experience to every player."

"Getting it right requires a lot of hard work from staff and management alike. Through the Golf Club Awards we'll find out which clubs are working the hardest, to provide a great golf experience."

NEWS FROM BARRY CHESS CLUB

Bosuns keep up title pressure

IT was a busy week for the Barry Chess Club, with three matches in the East Glamorgan Chess League and the third round of the club championship.

In a Swiss-style tournament, it takes a few rounds to sort out the stronger players from the rest. There were no real shocks but plenty of interesting games.

Peter Watkins and Chris Green are two players who should be somewhere in the middle of the pack so it was surprising that after two rounds they were the only players without any points at all.

So, when they played each other, perhaps caution was the watchword as they fought out a draw. Just above them was a clash between Martin Ricketts and new boy John Stephenson.

Before Christmas, John was beating everyone but since then he has found life much harder and has lost all of his games in 2014, so again it was no surprise to see Martin take the victory.

In the higher echelons, Lee Davis had a tough match against Dave Parsons. There were opportunities for Dave but eventually the victory went to Lee.

On the top board Ashley Davis had a very long game with Ken Hannah. For a long time it seemed that Ken would hold out for a draw but somehow Ashley found a winning move to allow him to queen a pawn for a winning advantage to maintain his 100 per cent record.

As we approach the fourth round, Ashley has three points to lead the table. The bowl is currently led by Ken Hannah with two points and the plate leader is Dave Mahoney with a win, draw and a loss for 1.5.

The Barry Bosons and the Barry Gambits both travelled to take on teams from St John's College. The Barry teams were much stronger than their opponents so anticipated big wins.

The Bosons duly managed four wins with only Lee Davis slipping up, although he managed a draw against one of his bogey opponents, Robert Taylor to give the Bosons a 4.5 - 0.5 win. This result maintains their position as second in the division.

With the Cardiff Castles only picking up 3.5 points, the Bosons edge closer to the top spot and are now only two points behind the Castles.

Although the Camelots did not have a game this week they remain in seventh place just above the Cardiff Pawns who are still in the relegation zone. The Pawns picked up 3.5 points and trail the Camelots by only 1.5 points.

The Gambits also won easily with four victories. Windsor Lewis was the unlucky player to lose to a queen and bishop attack.

Jason Grice earned his second victory in his first season but his game was played at a blitz pace, winning in approximately 60 moves but only using 15 minutes.

In a similar time frame Dave Mahoney conjured a win but only took 10 moves. This victory moves the Gambits up to fourth place, but the Bridgend Central Express are only a point behind with a game in hand.

In the second division, the Quarks had a home game with Penttyrch A. Chris Green won a match with Will Harwood even though he was giving away 300 rating points.

Kevin Gandy and Peter Watkins both earned draws against opponents rated 200 points higher to leave the Quarks as losers, but only by a score of 3-2.

The Quarks remain in ninth place and are now only three points behind the Cardiff Crows and North Cardiff Cheetahs, but with a game in hand, so it is still all to play for.

The Barry Chess Club meets at 7:30 pm each Monday at the West End Club, St Nicholas Road, Barry. The club is open to players of all standards; whether you are interested in playing competitive chess or just the occasional friendly games.

SPORTS NEWS FROM COWBRIDGE COMPREHENSIVE

BADMINTON TEAMS JUST MISS OUT ON TITLE TRIPLE

AFTER convincing wins in the regional tournaments, Cowbridge Comprehensive School had three teams out of the four representing the Vale in the South Central badminton competition.

The tournament was held at Cogan Leisure Centre in Penarth, and representing the junior girls were Kate Workman, Abby Johnson, Freya Johnson and Rhian Crossman, who faced tough opponents from Rumney, Lewis Girls and Cardiff High.

First up were Lewis Girls who, although full of energy, were no match for a well-drilled Cowbridge outfit.

Next were a spirited Cardiff High team, who despite only fielding a team of three players, acquitted themselves well to the challenge. Good wins from all four girls saw a comprehensive win for Cowbridge and a winner takes all match, versus Rumney.

Kate Workman and Freya Johnson won their singles games comfortably, ensuring a 2-0 lead going into the doubles.

The next two matches saw extremely close games but the quality of Cowbridge's team saw them run out 4-1 winners, lifting the trophy and crowning them South Central Welsh Champions.

The junior boys came into the competition full of confidence during an outstanding display during the regional competition.

Evan Thomas, Harry Donnithorne, Michael Cox and Will Stewart started their competition against a resilient Cardiff High team with a couple of outstanding players of their own.

Evan, Michael and Harry all won their matches and a comfortable 4-1 victory was achieved. Next were St John's, who again had talent within their ranks.

However, at this level talent alone isn't enough. Sheer guts, determination and a pinch of class was needed to achieve another 4-1 win.

St Cenydd were next, and they were suffering after being humbled in their two previous matches. Cowbridge were in no mood for sympathy, as they piled on even more misery with a 5-0 win.

Last and not least was the team from Ebbw Vale. Victory in this game would secure the title and this was achieved comfortably with another 5-0 win.

An outstanding performance from a very talented group of players who will go on to represent the school for years to come.

Finally, the Key Stage 4 team of Sam Stewart, Matthew Reynolds, Finn Murphy and Josh Evans stepped up to try and retain the trophy they won last year.

First up were Bishop of Llandaff who have been stiff competition at this stage in previous years. The boys from Cowbridge produced a resolute display to come out 3-2 winners in their first fixture.

Next were the team from Rumney, who had a couple of very talented players in their ranks. Matthew and Sam won both their singles fixtures and this set up a convincing 4-1 win overall.

The last opponents were Y Pant, who could be considered as local rivals. This was a winner takes all match which escaped the team from Cowbridge, who came up against better opposition on the day, second place was an excellent achievement nonetheless.

RAIN DOESN'T STOP PLAY AT SOUTHERNDOWN!

DESPITE the recent heavy rainfall, Southerndown golf course has not been closed, even for a day.

Elsewhere, golfers complain that their courses are unplayable in winter; their shoes get muddy, they can't use buggies or trolleys, they get frustrated by course closures and even when their courses are open, they have to play on winter tees and greens.

Southerndown members are lucky enough to be able to play all year round in near-perfect conditions, thanks to the unique features of this area of the Vale of Glamorgan. And, of course, they have spectacular views to enjoy, too!

2014 promises to be a great year in the history of this famous club, with two major golfing events, in addition to the annual Duncan Putter. In July a Senior Open Qualifier is being staged at Southerndown, and then in August the club plays host to the top amateur golfers of the UK as the four nations compete in the Home Internationals. A year to remember!

In the meantime, you can book a 4-ball at Southerndown for £100 in February (quote C2M-Gem) to see whether Second Club membership is for you. Call 01656 880476.

Compact convertible suits the British weather

THE Citroen DS3 Cabrio is the only convertible in its class to accommodate five passengers and to be equipped with a 245-litre boot and split folding rear seat.

That boot initially looks tiddly but after the lid is lifted it is large enough for a standard pushchair (with the rear wheels removed), which I must say surprises me.

As I sit inside the top-of-the-range 155bhp model I recall testing a Lexus IS250C luxury convertible. I was at the traffic lights when the sun decided to come out and I pressed the button for the roof to go down.

Almost instantaneously, the lights went to green and I had to get moving. As soon as the car moved, the roof stopped going down and so I was driving with it half up and with part of the boot lid still open.

I pulled over as soon as it was safe to do so. A ridiculous situation to be in, and unsafe.

Thank goodness there is finally a convertible that is well suited to the British weather and to impatient motorists like me. Because the roof does not fold back into the boot but above the rear window, it makes it more practical all round, which is why the roof can be operated at speeds of up to 75mph.

By Tim Saunders

The DS3's high quality canvas roof complements the bodywork and to the unknowing, it appears to be simply a hot hatch but we know otherwise. On first acquaintance the vehicle looks just like the DS3 coupe.

My test takes place in the middle of winter with lashing rain and, much to my wife's distaste, I have to experience driving with the roof down.

Controlled by a button on the overhead console, the hood opens and closes in just 16 seconds flat, which is just as well, because when the weather gets too unbearable that roof just has to go up.

It's just as well that it is fitted with a hardwearing interior that features leather seats and much plastic, which copes with excess rainwater well. But the great thing is that with the air conditioning turned up to maximum heat, you can enjoy all the benefits of open top driving with the advantage of a hot climate.

When the DS3 Cabrio's roof is open an aerodynamic front deflector reduces wind noise and deflects air currents to prevent buffeting.

The sophisticated Infinite Blue roof material is in blue and violet, created by a weave of three different coloured threads. One of these is shiny, with each thread reacting differently to changes in light conditions.

Inside, the two-door DS3 Cabrio is a distinctive and sophisticated cabin which includes all-new upholstery choices, including Granite Blue leather, while there is white LED ambient lighting around the ceiling console and white lights in the instrument cluster.

The trouble is that although it is marketed as a five seater, with the best will in the world it doesn't fit five adults in comfort. Even with our two child seats in the back, it is necessary for the front seats to be pushed forward, uncomfortably so for the driver, making it fine for short distances but not longer.

The ideal scenario is for three little scamps in the back and then the adults in the front have a reasonable amount of legroom.

The DS3 Cabrio's dashboard, air vent surround and gear knob are also colour coded to the body colour and soft top.

At just 3.95m long the DS3 Cabrio is compact enough to get into tight parking spaces, which is extremely important where I live because the council has taken it upon itself to put double yellow lines almost everywhere.

Externally, the DS3 Cabrio has eye-catching rear lights incorporating a chrome-finished DS logo, 17-inch alloys and a double chrome exhaust further adding to its cool sporting appeal.

It's a gutsy, fun car to drive with plenty of power, if required. As with all convertibles it makes a great second car.

LLANTWIT UNDER-13S TURN ON THE STYLE AT THE ARMS PARK

LMRFC U13s put on a spectacular show at the Cardiff Arms Park.

Llantwit Major RFC U13s traveled to the Cardiff Arms Park last Sunday on a wet and windy day. Llantwit knew before the game they would be up against it having lost to Clwb Rygbi last year.

The boys embraced the professional setup by using the Blues' changing rooms and also running out the tunnel for their warm up before the game.

The game started with Llantwit playing into the wind first half but straight from the whistle the Major started the game with a bang.

A superb catch from the kick off by captain Beiber Hodge saw Llantwit build and control the game playing the ball tight and driving it up with their forwards. A series of 'pick and go's' saw Llantwit on the Clwb's 22m line and a final push from the pack mauled the ball over the line. Second row Connor Treadgold was the man in possession of the ball.

With the wind firmly in the sails of Llantwit it wasn't long before Llantwit put more points on the scoreboard this time coming from fullback Iwan Robinson-Booth whose blistering pace carved through a huge gap and crossed the whitewash for another score.

Another try came for the Major. This time from outside centre Dylan Holloway who ran a beautiful line 20 metres out to cross for the third try of the game.

Llantwit then made the mistake of sitting back and a little change in the weather saw Llantwit's dominance slowly defuse and Clwb scored 2 tries in quick succession to make it 17-12. It looked like a fightback was on the cards and it wasn't long before the game broke up and Clwb scored their third try of the game to take it to 17-15 with 5 minutes left before the interval.

The half time score finished at 17-15 to Clwb.

Treadgold barged his way over the line to score early in the second half.

Centre Holloway hoofed the ball 40 metres down field and with an incredible change of speed fullback Iwan Robinson-Booth chased the ball. Having the whole length of the field to make up and 6 Clwb players in between him and the bouncing ball he beat them all and with a silky bit of footwork he controlled it over the try line to score.

With the clock ticking Llantwit wanted to make this game their own and fly half Padmore tore the opposition backline to pieces.

With the opposition unsure of Padmore's thinking they were all over the shop and it gave centres Fraser Prior and Morgan Jenkins a good platform to attack from and to make it harder for Clwb's defence.

Treadgold picked up a superb pop pass from the ground by flanker Callum McInnes to smash his way through the Clwb defence. With Connor's dad betting a tanner a try it got worse for him as Connor scored once more to take the score to 48-17 and his personal tally to 5.

A dominant performance and a superb victory. The boys wished Padmore a happy birthday.

ROUT IN THE DUBLIN RAIN... BUT DON'T WRITE OFF WELSH TEAM JUST YET!

"The Irish were superb and we were very disappointing", admitted Wales' New Zealand head coach, after watching his team comprehensively crushed in the wind and rain in Dublin by a fired-up Ireland side, led from the front by Paul O'Connell and Brian O'Driscoll, and finally undone by precision kicking from the home outside half.

...But the coach wasn't Warren Gatland... The date was February 3, 2002, and it was his fellow countryman Graham Henry being interviewed, after seeing his Wales side (which included current assistant coaches Rob Howley and Robin McBride) humiliated by a record 54-10 defeat that saw the demoralised Kiwi vacating his post after just three and a half years and retreating Down Under to higher things!

While there is little danger of history repeating itself in 2014, Saturday's stunning 26-3 result, though not as traumatic as 12 years ago, was equally as emphatic – and the sense of déjà vu was palpable as a grim-faced Gatland faced the media afterwards.

BACK PAGE COMMENT by Don John

"It was one of the worst performances since I have been involved with the team. We gave away 16 penalties, and were well beaten up front. Ireland certainly deserved to win," he said with typical honesty.

He went on to add ominously that while some Welsh players had not performed, the coaches, too, would have to take their share of the blame for what had turned into a full scale rout – with hopes of a record third successive championship seemingly in tatters.

The shattering reverse had been led once again by the big O's – O'Connell and O'Driscoll, while this time it was France-based Jonny Sexton turning the screw at No 10, not the Ulsterman David Humphries of 2002 vintage.

Sexton's ice-cool control and pinpoint accuracy stood in stark contrast to the flailing, error-ridden efforts of a young but experienced Welsh side containing a clutch of British Lions, whose indiscipline and frustration cost them dear the more the match wore on.

It also compared very unfavourably with the canny, controlled aggression of an Irish team that stuck to their deceptively simple but effective game plan, devised by Joe Schmidt (who on this occasion clearly won the backroom battle of the head coaches) to neutralise the Welsh power game by circumventing it.

Even so, the one-sided nature of the contest came as a major shock, with O'Connell himself saying: "I'm really surprised at the final result on the scoreboard".

Most commentators had predicted an evenly-matched, tight affair that could go either way, but were scathing in their response: Typical headlines were – "Humiliation for Welsh pack" – Total domination!" – "No plan B!" they cried.

Be that as it may, it certainly looked that way for much of 80 torrid minutes that could never qualify as a rugby classic, and one where referee Wayne Barnes' over-active whistle had more than a passing influence on the outcome.

Old setpiece problems surfaced early with the first of two lost lineouts, and then an unfortunate injury to Welsh centre Scott Williams brought a hurried change in formation, with George North having to move inside from the wing.

The coach again resisted the temptation to inject the vision and flair of unused replacement James Hook into the backline – so we will never know if that would have made a difference, as the seriously malfunctioning side ran out of ideas and patience – to be immediately punished by two Sexton penalties. (Tellingly, Wales conceded seven penalties in the first quarter alone).

With Welsh errors mounting apace, a powerful Irish lineout saw Chris Henry driven over for a try, converted by the clinical Sexton on the half hour, to take the score to 13-0.

A bleak first half ended with Wales having more problems at the setpiece and breakdown, conceding eight penalties, with nine missed tackles, and crucially losing the ball in contact – with consequent loss of cohesion and momentum.

Any hope that this could be regained after a welcome respite at halftime was lost when they were penalised yet again and Sexton made no mistake, to take the score to 16-0 – and now the signs were really looking ominous for Wales, as they desperately began to chase a victory that had never really looked within reach.

A promising attack was stillborn as they suffered yet another turnover, but finally earned a penalty make the score 26-3.

The game ended as it had begun, with Ireland seizing on opposition fumbles and pummelling away at the battered defence.

The Welsh players were for once glad to hear referee Barnes' whistle to signal the end of a miserable ordeal whose long-term effects will clearly be a huge cause for concern as the 'inquest' into what exactly went wrong in Dublin continues back home.

Was it the fact that several key players had taken the field less than fully match fit after returning from injuries?

Has the prolonged off-field disarray involving the WRU and the four professional regions, and the latter's continuing lack of sustained success on the field, had its inevitable spin-off in the national team's performance?

Was it a distraction in the build-up to a media-hyped Dublin encounter that Wales knew would test their players' commitment to the utmost?

Who knows? At least now though, the Welsh camp has time to take stock before the newly buoyant French come to town with championship hopes of their own.

Plenty of searching questions to be answered by the Welsh camp, yes, but it is far too early to conclude, as some critics have, on the basis of one bad defeat, that Wales have been "found out" at international level.

Or that Gatland's mantle has now been taken over by Ireland's Schmidt on the strength of just one well-plotted victory.

Incredibly, it has even been suggested that the latter has leap-frogged Gatland as favourite to lead the next Lions' tour in 2017!

Of course, if the Kiwi can manufacture a home win over the French next week and get Wales' triple championship bid back on track, all will be just as quickly forgiven!

One thing is for sure, it would be foolish to conduct an autopsy on Welsh rugby just yet!
